GLENDALE S. P. STATION PLANS APPROVED

Our City comment & discussion by THOMAS D. WATSON

Glendale's Growth in August is Indication of Fall.

TWO hundred and fifty thousand dollars in permits for the opening week in August is surely a record that the citizens of Glendale may well be proud of. It is such a fine showing that a little crowing would not be out of order.

That August, the month which is ordinarily the poorest month in the year in the building line should start out by shattered records speaks well for the balance of the year. We have spoken before of the universal optimistic feeling among the real estate men and we are convinced that the conditions more than justify this feeling.

* * *

THERE is no doubt in our minds but that the coming fall will prove to be the most prosperous time that the city has ever experienced. Everything points that way. With this thought in mind it will be well for all citizens to put their hands to the wheel and help push. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, so let's see that the weak links are strengthened so as to be strong enough to stand the strain.

* * *

WITH a low tax rate for this coming year, an assurance of an ultimate sewer, a civic center to take care of the civic needs, a bridge to Griffith park, all we need to gain the residents is an opportunity to tell our story..

RAILROAD COMMISSION O. K. ON DEPOT

Work to Start as Soon as the Verification Is Received

NO DETAILS AS YET

Design May Have Been Changed at San Francisco

[By Associated Press]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—Plans of the Southern Pacific Co. for the erection of a $50,000 passenger station at Glendale, a suburb of Los Angeles, were approved today by the state railroad commission.

Details of the plans could not be obtained at the Southern Pacific office in Los Angeles today, for the reason that all of the plans involved had been sent to San Francisco for consideration of the railroad commission. So far as the Los Angeles office was concerned, no verification of the report had been received and it was not known whether the plans had been altered from the original specifications.

It is understood at the Los Angeles office of the Southern Pacific that the work of construction will start as soon as official word of the approval is received by the construction department of the railroad.

DEATH RIDES IN RUBBER TIRE

(By United Press)

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 11.—Harold Wyatt, aged 19, and Harold Taylor, aged 15, pumped up the inner tube from an auto tire, put it around them and went swimming. It worked fine.

Coming home along the railroad track they remained within the ring.

An electric train came up behind them and whistled.

Each started in a different direction. The tube stretched and then its elasticity pulled them back onto the tracks.

Wyatt was run over and instantly killed. Taylor is in a hospital with a broken leg and a broken arm.

136-POUND TUNA ADMITS H. S. WEBB TO CATALINA CLUB

Glendale Merchant Gets a Record Fish on Tuesday Morning

To land a 136½-pound tuna within 22 minutes is "some job."

But little things like that do not mean anything to H. S. Webb, proprietor of the Webb Department store, at Wilson and Brand. They are taken as a matter of course.

Last Sunday H. S. decided to take a boat ride and in company with his mother, Mrs. F. A. Webb, his sister, Mrs. Helen Sawyer, and his nephew, Henry Sawyer, he set out for Catalina. The trip over was ideal and every inch of it was enjoyed. The party stayed over Sunday night and was preparing to return on Monday when Mr. Webb heard one of the boatmen say:

"The big things are on. This is the first day the tuna have been working for a month and it looks to me that things will be apoppin' before long."

H. S. took the hint and without delay he hired a launch. The outfit left the wharf at 3:50 and headed for the deep water. The tuna apparatus was arranged and the little boat chugged along, with Mr. Webb at his perch at the rear.

Pretty soon something happened. To H. S. it felt like a blow from a ball bat. The next thing he knew his line was being played out at a rate of, say, a thousand yards a minute.

"There's sure a beauty on the other end of this line," said H. S.

When about enough line had been played out the angler put on the brakes and the big fellow was brought to a stop. Then followed some real work in bringing the fish to gaff. It was all the pilot of the boat and Mr. Webb could do to pull the tuna over the side. The boys decided to call it a day.

The tuna weighed 136½ pounds.

That day had experienced a great run of tuna, forty-six having been caught by the various anglers. The one taken by H. S. was the largest caught during the day, and for several hours it held forth in the location of honor at the end of the pier.

The next day Mr. Webb made another ringer by bringing in a tuna weighing 85 pounds, while his companion on that trip, Mr. Cracker of Pomona, landed another weighing 121 pounds.

The big fellow was shipped by Mr. Webb to Glendale.

"Folks don't believe stories of this kind unless you have the goods to prove it," said Mr. Webb. "That's why I brought the little finny creature along.

"But, say, I surely was sore Wednesday morning. It's real work landing those big fellows."

SOUTH DAKOTA TO START FIGHT ON GASOLINE

Governor Announces Purchase of Supplies to Break Prices

[By Associated Press]

MARION, Ohio, August 11.—One hundred and sixty thousand gallons of gasoline purchased in Chicago Thursday will be shipped at once to nine cities in South Dakota for sale to the public at 16 cents a gallon.

Announcement of this latest development in South Dakota gasoline "war" was made here today by Governor W. H. McMaster of South Dakota, who came to Marion to attend the funeral of the late President Harding.

The governor further announced that he is calling upon the surrounding states to join in the fight against "high" gasoline prices.

GASOLINE PRICES IN SO. DAKOTA REDUCED

[By Associated Press]

CHICAGO, August 11.—A reduction in the price of gasoline in South Dakota to 16 cents a gallon was announced here today by the Standard Oil company of Indiana. The action was taken by the board of directors, according to a statement issued by them, as a result of an order of Governor W. H. McMaster of South Dakota on August 7, in which he ordered the Highway Supply Depot, operated by the state at Mitchell, S. D., to sell gasoline at 16 cents a gallon.

"The governor of South Dakota, on August 7, ordered the Highway Supply Depot at Mitchell, S. D., to sell gasoline to the public at 16 cents a gallop," the statement of the board of directors said. "In accordance with his orders, gasoline has been sold and is now selling at the Highway Supply Depot, maintained by the state of South Dakota at Mitchell, at a price of 16 cents a gallon.

"The governor has also stated that he proposes to establish supply depots in other parts of the state, at which gasoline will be sold at a price equivalent to this price so maintained in the city of Mitchell.

"The Standard Oil company of Indiana asserts that such a price is below the cost of manufacture and distribution and that the prices now maintained by it and most of its competitors in the state of South Dakota are reasonable and just, based on the present prices of crude oil and the cost of manufacture and distribution of its products.

"The Standard Oil company of Indiana has always stood upon the principle that the customers who purchased its goods should never be compelled to pay a higher price than that maintained and fixed by any competitor, quality and service being duly considered.

"Acting on this principle, the Standard Oil company of Indiana today has fixed a price for gasoline, the difference in the cost of transportation being recognized, at all points in the state of South Dakota the same as that maintained by the state, through the action of its governor and its highway commission, 16 cents a gallon.

"It takes this action fully aware of the fact that this price is far below cost and that it should not be maintained by the state.

"The Standard Oil company of Indiana asserts as the absolute truth, which it is prepared at any time to prove, that it does not dictate or dominate in any way in the prices which its competitors fix upon the goods they sell and asserts that it has nothing to do with the prices made by its competitors and the so-called independent dealers in the state of South Dakota or any other state."

HARDING PLANNED TO UNIFY SECTS OF CHURCH

Believed It Wrong That There Should Be Denominations

By LAWRENCE MARTIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

MARION, O., Aug. 11.—If he had been spared a little longer, Warren Harding would have devoted himself more frequently than ever to a task, the importance of which he believed no one could overestimate—bringing about a spirit of greater unity among the Christian churches of the country.

To him it was a great wrong that the Christians of America are divided into so many sects and denominations. He believed they ought to eradicate sectarian and denominational lines. How else, he argued, can they achieve in the world the universal brotherhood they preach and profess to work for.

Mr. Harding's feeling on this was strikingly illustrated at Metlakatla, the first Alaskan settlement he visited. Metlakatla is a little Indian village, where a missionary years ago founded a church and began to evangelize the then savage natives.

Later another denomination sent workers to the field and a competition sprang up between the two churches. They became rivals for the memberships and contributions of the Indians. Today the two churches stand there, with two contribution boxes asking for gifts.

Mr. Harding saw this. To him it typified what is going on in a larger way all over America.

"That is all wrong, all wrong," said Mr. Harding, as he walked back from Metlakatla churches to the dock to go aboard ship. "Such things ought not to be, either here or anywhere. Churches ought to get away from those divisions and rivalries. It is not right that Christians should compete for souls like rivals in commerce. It is all wrong, all wrong."

And then, in his final speech, which was prepared to be delivered to the Knights Templer at Hollywood, Calif., Mr. Harding expressed this same view in earnest fashion, declaring that less religion and more Christianity was America's need. By religion he meant the religious system of denominations and sects. Those who were with him knew he intended to keep stressing that idea, for he believed that as long as the moral influence of the world were split up by rivalries, it would be more difficult to bring about permanent world peace, the great dream of his soul.

COOLIDGE BLAMES OLD COBBLER FOR HIS PRESIDENCY

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Aug. 11.—James Lucey of this city, cobbler and long-time friend of Calvin Coolidge, has shown to friends a letter he received from President Coolidge, written at Washington, and saying that "if it were not for you I should not be here." The letter, in the president's handwriting, was as follows:

"My dear Mr. Lucey: Not often do I see you or write to you, but if it were not for you I should not be here. And I want to tell you how much I love you. Do not work too hard. Try to enjoy yourself in your well deserved leisure of age.

"Yours sincerely,
(Signed)
"CALVIN COOLIDGE."

"Washington, D. C.,
"Aug. 6, 1923.

"To James Lucey, Northampton, Mass.—Jim Lucey, who would rather be called a good shoemaker than the president's cobbler, friend and philosopher."

The president, since his college days, has known Lucey.

When he was a young lawyer just entering politics, Lucey was his firm friend.

The New England Furniture company, 231 South Brand, started a sale this morning which bids fair to be the biggest furniture event of the kind ever pulled off by this company. Before the doors opened this morning people were waiting to get in, and several salesmen were kept busy all day taking care of the many people who thronged the store to buy high grade furniture at greatly reduced prices.

This sale will continue several days, and the large page posters and the page advertisement which appeared in the Glendale Daily Press Friday and today, gave some idea of the special prices offered. The New England Furniture store is located at 231 South Brand boulevard, opposite the Glendale Daily Press office.

MRS. HARDING TO FACE LONE YEARS

Returns to Washington to Start Packing Up at the White House

By LAWRENCE MARTIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Facing lonely years with courage and calmness, Mrs. Warren G. Harding today prepared to gather up the broken threads of her life and to weave them into a new design.

Mrs. Harding's special train arrived in Washington from Marion at 9:20 a. m.

She re-entered the empty White House today to collect personal belongings, every one of them certain to remind her of the husband she left in that quiet Marion cemetery yesterday. But just as there was neither hysteria nor self pity in her demeanor during the ordeals of Mr. Harding's illness, death and burial, so there will be no heroics about her final days in the White House.

Mrs. Harding, always a most practical, capable woman for all her feminine charms, approaches her new life just as she has in the past faced difficult tasks or trying situations—with a determination to make herself mistress of the situation, rather than let it master her.

The best way to meet life now—the life without the one to whose comfort and well-being she ministered constantly—is to be active, she believes, and now that she has laid the dead to rest she intends to devote herself to the living.

She has not definitely decided whether to send her effects to Marion or to put them in storage in Washington. Mrs. Harding does not know just how long it will take her to pack, but she desires to finish as soon as possible so as not to keep the Coolidges' waiting.

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge have told her to take all the time she desires as they are comfortable in the temporary White House in the New Willard.

Laddie Boy, Mr. Harding's airdale dog, Mrs. Harding has given into the keeping of Harry Barker, the secret service man. He will look after Laddie Boy until Mrs Harding is settled in a permanent home. She will never give Laddie Boy away outright, Mrs. Harding said, but just now she is unable to take care of him.

When she is through at the White House, Mrs. Harding may stay for a time with friends near Washington or she may go to the home of her brother, G. T. Kling, in Marion.

For the next six months or perhaps longer, she will spend much time in rest and will be very largely in seclusion from the large circle that knew her. If her present plans hold and her health continues good, she will gradually resume her place and then will develop the nature of her new activities. For the present nothing will be said about those. But Mrs. Harding is likely to leave an impression on her time that will not soon be forgotten, if she is permitted to do what she now regards as her life work.

Mrs. Harding did not return to Washington on the private car, Superb, on which she and the late president traveled to the coast and which brought his body home.

"Take that car away; I never want to see it again," she said when the casket was removed at Marion. The car was sent at once to the railroad shops for overhauling. Mrs. Harding rode home to Washington in the private car of E. B. McLean of Washington, which was hooked to the special train.

Mrs. Harding and other members of the party who went to Alaska, completed today at Washington a journey of 18,000 mile, which has lasted since June 20.

George Christian, in addition to helping Mrs. Harding, will clean out his desk in the executive offices and in a short time will go into private business. Christian announced his resignation as secretary to the president in Marion yesterday, just following Mr. Harding's burial.

Communities Still Bid For First City Manager

LAWRENCE, Kan., Aug. 11.—When Charles Edward Ashburner, city manager of Norfolk, Va., assumes his new job as city manager of Stockton, Cal., September 1, at a salary of $20,000 a year, he will continue to be the highest paid city manager in the United States, according to John G. Stutz of this city, executive secretary of the National City Managers' Association. His salary at Norfolk is $16,000 a year.

"An interesting thing about Ashburner is that he not only is the highest paid city manager in the United States, but he was the pioneer in the profession—he was the first city manager," said Secretary Stutz. "When he accepted the job of manager of the city of Staunton, Va., in 1908 he received only a nominal salary. It was largely through the successful demonstration he gave there that other cities accepted the idea. When Ashburner was asked by the city of Stockton to fix his salary, he put the figure so high he did not imagine a city of but 50,000 population would accept. Although Norfolk, a city of 150,000, later met the rise in the effort to hold Ashburner, of course he could not annul Stockton's acceptance of his offer."

Ashburner went from Staunton to Springfield, O., as city manager in 1914, and four years later to Norfolk.

More than 300 cities in the United States are operated under the city manager plan, according to Mr. Stutz.

S. BERMAN IS BACK FROM TRIP

S. Berman, the well known merchant tailor of this city, his wife and family, have returned from a motoring and camping trip to Mirabel Park in Sonoma county, about 14 miles from Santa Rosa, a resort they have visited before and to which they returned because they liked it so well the first time.

It is on the beautiful Russian River which has been expanded to form a lake for boating and bathing. They spent five delightful weeks there swimming, fishing and boating, and are recommending it to all their friends. They also made short stops in San Francisco, Oakland, Richmond, Berkeley, Santa Rosa, Petaluma and Healdsburg. Though all are pleasant cities, none of them looked so good to them as Glendale.

BRITISH WATCH GERMAN REACTIONS

LONDON, August 11.—Internal developments in Germany are being watched here with keen interest and not without anxiety.

The morning newspapers feature long special dispatches from Berlin dealing with the food and currency difficulties, the strikes and other disturbing factors in the situation. Some of the correspondents dwell on what they call the "ugly spirit of the workers" and express fears that a revolution may possibly come out of it all.

This Washerwoman Is Real British Countess

Tiring of London's endless social activities, the Countess of Clonmell looked around for something else to do. She wanted to be a successful business woman. Her ambition has been gratified. She is a very successful washerwoman — on a large scale. The countess opened the White Elephant laundry in the center of aristocratic Mayfair. Her business venture was a success from the start and her laundries have spread to various other cities in the British Isles.

GIANT SEQUOIA FOUND IN PARK

[By Associated Press]

VISALIA, Calif., Aug. 11.—Discovery of a new Sequoia Gigantea, which, although not quite as large in girth as the General Sherman or General Grant Sequoias in the Sequoia and Grant national parks, is considerably taller than either, is reported from the Bear Creek country south of Milo, Tulare county. Sequoia park officials plan an early visit to the tree under guidance of Chester Doyle of Porterville, who claims to have made the first measurements.

According to Doyle the "Lady Alice" tree is 30 feet in diameter, six and one-half feet less than the Sherman tree and six feet less than the Grant, but stands 315 feet high, compared with 285 feet for the Sherman, long recognized as the largest and oldest of living things. The Sherman and Grant Sequoias were both struck by lightning, perhaps centuries ago, and their tops broken off. Doyle declares that the first limb on the Lady Alice is 215 feet from the ground and has a diameter of five feet eight inches.

FOOD SHORTAGE DUE TO WORTHLESS MONEY

[By Associated Press]

BERLIN, August 11.—A critical food situation, superinduced by a shortage of supplies and by prices beyond the reach of the workers who are being paid in worthless paper marks, together with an internal, economic and financial situation that is regarded as highly favorable to the effective spread of Bolshevik propaganda, may be said to be the immediate cause of the impending retirement of the Cuno ministry. Reichstag circles today accept the fall of the present government as an accomplished fact.

W. C. T. U. DAY AT PALISADES IS SUCCESS

Representatives of Nine Counties Appear at Meeting

W. C. T. U. Chautauqua day at the Pacific Palisades on Wednesday was a great success, and, according to the officials, there was present the largest attendance of any one day, except Sundays. There were representatives present from nine of the eleven counties in which the W. C. T. U. is working in this district and hundreds of women from all over the state.

In the absence of the state W. C. T. U. president, who is out of the state and unable to attend, the program was in charge of the vice-president, Mrs. Julia D. Phelps. The Sammie's sisters contributed several delightful musical numbers to the program.

Princess Rhame Haider of Jerusalem, who is a lineal descendant of King Hadad of Bible times, was very charming in her brilliant costume of the country and quantity of jewels. She gave an interesting historical sketch of the country and her life there, following which she put on the drama of "Ruth and Naomi."

Another feature of the day's program was the W. C. T. U. pageant, in which the forty departments illustrated their work.

Those attending from Glendale included Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Yeoman, Mrs. Flora Lemon, Mrs. King, Mrs. O. S. Palmer, Mrs. Edith Dockeray, Mrs. Cleora Headley, Donald Headley, Mrs. Van Hueckiin and Mrs. Ruby Smart, president of the local W. C. T. U.

LEGION NEWS

For God and Country, we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a one hundred per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the Great War; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of Justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness.—Preamble to the Constitution of the American Legion.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—The American Legion, Department of California, joined the Nation yesterday in paying silent tribute to their beloved Past Commander-in-Chief, Warren G. Harding, by rendering patriotic memorial services in every community throughout the state. In compliance with President Coolidge's proclamation, all Post colors and club rooms were draped and will remain so for a period of thirty days.

When the sad news of the president's passing to the Great Beyond reached the department headquarters, Morgan Keaton, state adjutant, and Leslie Newman, adjutant of the county council, had the Legion emblem made into a large floral wreath which typified the love and devotion of all patriotic Americans and the following day presented this token of affection and condolence to Mrs. Harding.

Representatives from the San Francisco county council of the American Legion were among the honorary pall bearers in starting the Nation's burden of sorrow on its transcontinental trip. At every station the funeral train passed through the American Legion was present, Post colors draped, heads bowed and bared in silent tribute to the memory of their neighbor and fellow American who died in the service of his country.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—Morgan Keaton, state department adjutant of the American Legion, announces that credentials have been mailed to the twenty-two hundred and ten delegates and alternates who will attend the state convention of the organization in Eureka, August 27 to 30, inclusive.

The North Western Pacific has signified its intention if conditions warrant same, of putting a special train from San Francisco to Eureka on Sunday, August 26. All delegates who desire to take advantage of this service have been advised to notify state headquarters at once. This train would leave San Francisco ferry at about 10:30 a. m., leaving plenty of time for delegates arriving from the valley and Southern California to make connections and would arrive in Eureka at 10 o'clock Sunday night in plenty of time for the convention. Otherwise, many of the delegates would be unable to make connections since the Sunday morning regular train leaves San Francisco at about 7:45 a. m., which is too early for connections with the trains from the valley and Los Angeles. A rate of $16.00 from San Francisco to Eureka and return has been made.

Many important resolutions have been prepared to be presented to the convention affecting the betterment of the conditions and the welfare of the disabled former service men. The Americanization Committee of the American Legion will present a resolution calling for the total exclusion of all immigrants to the United States, including the Oriental, for a period of five years, or until America is able to assimilate those already in its midst. This resolution will also be presented at the national convention of the American Legion in San Francisco next October.

RHODA CLUB TO MEET ON SUNDAY

Watkin Roberts of Wales. Mr. Jones was one of the leaders of the great Wales revival and has a live message. Young people are especially invited.

BANKS POST AND CORPS HOLDS SERVICES

Rev. W. B. Collins Makes Fine Address on the Late President

An attendance of members of N. P. Banks post and Women's Relief Corps came out to the special memorial services Friday afternoon which filled the G. A. R. hall. Speaker of the day was Rev. William B. Collins, who frequently reviewed the career of Warren G. Harding from the days of his impoverished boyhood to his elevation to the presidency, dwelling upon the lessons of his life, and the debt his country owes for his devotion to its interests. It was a masterly effort of which his comrades felt proud and with good reason.

The audience united in singing "Nearer My God to Thee," and "Battle Hymn of the Republic," and the chaplain of the post, Rev. C. R. Norton offered prayer. Commander Tom Bartlett presided.

Following the service members of the relief corps of which Mrs. Flora Pixley is president, held a business session.

GIRL SCOUTS NO. 1 OBSERVE HARDING MEMORIAL

Girl Scouts, troop No. 1, observed Friday appropriately by holding a meeting at the home of Carolyn Ayars, 315 North Orange. Scout ceremonial was followed by presentation of merit badges to Fredcrica Browne and Alexandria Bagley, and the formal investiture of Frederica Browne as a first class Scout.

The troop was honored by the presence of R. D. White, who gave a very beautiful and impressive talk on President Harding, closing with some quotations from the president.

The meeting closed with the singing of America.

Those present were Gladys Sharpe, captain; Cecil Chase, Mary Jo Phillips, Alexandria Bagley, Frederica Browne, Alice Duey, Alice Hill, Marjorie Hart, Lucile Beach, Marjorie Temple, Carolyn Ayars, Alice Carpenter, Wilma Gosser, Vivian Nay, Katherine Bender, Beryl Goodale, Evelyn Turner and Lucile Harris.

Hayselden Returns From Trip to North

P. J. Hayselden, his wife and daughter Virginia, have just returned from a camping and motoring trip which took them as far north as Portland, Ore. They were gone three weeks and feasted on beauty most of the way, but when they drove into the brightly illuminated boulevards of Glendale Friday night and compared its well ordered streets with those they had seen elsewhere, they were more than ever convinced it is the most beautiful city of their acquaintance. They did not see another like it in the whole course of their travels.

All the way they had delightful weather except for heat at Bakersfield and Tulare. They found the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys have had a remarkable illummer from the viewpoint of climatic conditions. The highways were wonderful, the Oregon roads being very fine with mountain turns all banked and wide for safety. Between here and Portland they encountered only 65 miles of dirt road.

The old historic towns they visited in the north seemed to them to lack the vital spark so evident in Glendale. They looked just as they did years ago. As for the traffic everybody in every kind of a vehicle seemed to be headed for Los Angeles.

La Crescenta Personals

The entire La Crescenta Valley observed yesterday as the day of national mourning, all stores being closed for the day. Memorial services for our late president were held at the school auditorium last evening and were presided over by Rev. H. A. Kelso, pastor of the La Crescenta Community Church. Favorite hymns of our late president were sung and most impressive were the eulogies delivered by Rev. Kelso, Rev. C. L. Davenport and Rev. A. W. McLaughling.

M. S. Collins and son, Stuart Collins, arrived home last Thursday from a two months' trip through the east. Much of Mr. Collins' time was spent in his old home state, Maine.

J. S. Conlin returned last Thursday from a ten days' stay at his ranch at Pala, California.

The many friends of Mrs. Emma C. Stevenson of Sycamore and Glenwood avenues were grieved to learn of her death which occurred at her home last Tuesday after only a short illness. Mrs. Stevenson had been a resident of La Crescenta for the past three years. She is survived by one sister, Miss Estelle Irish of Los Angeles, and two daughters, Mrs. Z. W. Newton of Los Angeles, and Mrs. M. F. Litten of La Crescenta. Funeral services were held this afternoon at the Little Church of the Flowers, Forest Lawn Memorial Park.

Misses Vivian and Dorothy Ulrey of Indianapolis, Ind., nieces of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Ayers of 315 Cameron Place, arrived at the Ayers home Thursday. The Ayers family with other Indianapolis relatives spent Friday at the beach. The nieces will remain with their aunt and uncle for at least three months.

Misses Agnes and Elsie Verity, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Verity of 511 West Broadway, have returned from a two months' visit in the east, where they went to attend the wedding of a cousin at Bangor, Michigan. They also visited in Kansas City, their former home in St. Louis, various cities in Illinois and Michigan.

He says everybody wants to come to California this fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Brown, their son, Meredith; daughter, Blanche Evelyn, and Mrs. Mendenhall, sister of Mrs. Brown, are leaving today for Roberts Camp in the Sierra Madre mountains for a stay of ten days or two weeks.

The past week they have been entertaining a house party of relatives numbering 13, but have experienced no ill luck. Their guest list included: A niece and nephew of Mrs. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Claud Willoughby and daughter Rhea from Central City, Nebraska; another niece and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. J. Herrington of Valley, Nebraska; Mr. and Mrs. Hayden Evans and son Karl from Kansas. During their stay in the mountains the home of the Browns will be occupied by a son and daughter.

A GOOD SPORT

(Ranger Bill Says a Mouthful)

"Good sports? Sure, there's a heap of them still roaming the woods," said Ranger Bill. "I meet them every summer. Lots of them are my friends, too, and I'm mighty glad to do everything I can to help them have a pleasant vacation. But when I say 'a good sport,' I mean a man who always thinks of the other fellow. He's the kind of guy you're sure will live up to the game laws and keep a clean camp and won't forget to put out his fire with lots of water and earth. Moreover, he doesn't go around the woods flipping burning matches and cigarettes into the brush. He knows what would happen if he did—less hunting, less fishing, and fewer places for sport and pleasure. You don't have to take that kind of a fellow up before the judge very often, either.

"But you can just bet your last cigarette paper that not everyone who goes up into the mountains packing a fishing rod or a gun is 'a good sport.' Most folks want to be one, and mean to be, too; but 'bout half way up the trail the first day they meet Old Man Carelessness, and they just can't help taking him along for company. And right there's where they make the mistake of their lives.

"Of course, you know Old Man Carelessness—'most everyone does. Right about this time of the year, when the deer season is opening, you always find him up in the woods. He likes to sit around a smouldering camp fire after everybody else has gone, and he just does on burning cigarettes thrown promiscuous into the leaves and needles. With his good friends, Mr. Hot Weather and Miss East Wind he can cook up more trouble in an hour than a hundred men can undo in a week. His specialty in California is forest fires—he's a bear at that.

"Here I've got 57 different things to do and 200,000 acres of prime timber to look after and protect. That's a plenty of a job, too, but along come a thousand hunters and campers, and half of them will have a package of tailor-mades in their pocket. Then it's good-bye sleep and 'most everything else till the fall rains come. Do you wonder we fellows get gray-haired early? 'Tain't the 'good sports' I worry about; it's the fellows that don't measure up to that standard. Well, so long! I've got to get out and ride on fire patrol. Don't worry about the deer; they're twice as safe as the trees are during the hunting season."

Actions of a father speak louder than words of his son.

Miss Stewart is one of the most popular of feminine screen stars and has many notable productions to her credit. She was starred by Vitagraph for a number of years and recently has made pictures for Louis Mayer and for First National. WEEKLY REVIEW OF FINANCES IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—President Harding's death and funeral services exercised a restraining influence on trading in this week's security market. Prices pointed upward earlier in the week in reflection of the financial community's confidence in the new Washington administration, but publication of a new unfavorable trade reports and Chancellor Cuno's policy to continue passive resistance in the Ruhr, turned prices heavy again in the later trading.

Prices generally were regarded as inconclusive owing to the absence of a number of larger traders and the natural disposition of others to defer extending their commitments until after the day of national mourning, the real estate of the market's inherent strength is not expected until next week.

Who Wants a Little 'Possum for Playmate?

Who wants this possum?

In the wee small hours of this morning while making his rounds Officer Wurtz, passing the corner of Orange and Broadway, saw a pair of someing playing on the street just ahead of him.

Upon closer investigation it was found that the two playful individuals were possums. Carefully, quietly, quickly and with a hammering heat the officer "snuck" over to where the little ones were playing. Suddenly there was a cessation in the playful operations followed by a grand scramble for safety.

But Wurtz was too quick for one of the cute little fellows. The animal was pinched and taken to police headquarters where it is now resting quietly. The technical charge filed against this fellow is disturbing the peace and obstructing traffic.

The department wants to give him away. He embodies a mighty good meal or a playmate for some one. Who wants to take a chance? Don't crowd—stand in line, please! Maybe the owner is here.

HUNTS RABBITS FOR DOG RACES

BAKERSFIELD, Calif., Aug. 11.—Most western farmers are busily engaged in keeping down the rabbit population in their vicinity, but W. J. Browning, of Delano, near here, actually makes a business of collecting them. He gathers the wild bunnies for "bait" in coursing events throughout the country.

Browning has trapped his long-eared prey in the open country near Delano for about 25 years, sometimes bringing in as many as 100 in a day's catch. In one month, he said, he shipped 3,500 of the animals to California, and to other Pacific coast points, as well as to the east.

His usual practice is to ship the rabbits to their destination from day to day as soon as caught, before their have a chance to become tame and their fleet-footedness is lessened by confinement.

TAX THE OPERA "POODLE CUDDLING GANG," SAYS HE

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 11 (United Press).—Atlanta's "poodle cuddling gang" was in consternation today over possibilities of paying $2,500 additional for their seasonal taste of grand opera.

The house of the legislature after weighing the wealth of "Luxury rolling" class against the culture of music, voted for a tax of $2,500 on grand opera in Atlanta.

"I say let us fax the crowd that attends grand opera—the luxury rolling, silk rolling, diamond wearing, monkey and poodle dog nursing and abbreviated apparel wearing gang," representative Pope urged.

VAUDEVILLE AT THE GLENDALE TONIGHT

The usual Saturday vaudeville tonight at the Glendale will be supplemented by Katherine Perry who in private life is Mrs. Owen Moore, who plays the leading feminine role opposite Herbert Rawlinson in "Fools and Riches." Miss Perry has played leading roles opposite her husband in a number of his productions and is considered one of the real beauties of the screen.

Sunday Program

"Paddy-the-Next-Best-Thing," a Graham Wilcox production, in which Mae Marsh portrays the title role and signalizes her return to the screen after an absence of two years, is credited by the critical British reviewers with being one of the most delightful picture stories ever filmed.

Motion picture enthusiasts of this city will have an opportunity of seeing this picture, made in London and Ireland, next Sunday, when it will be shown as the feature attraction at the Glendale theater under release by Allied Producers and Distributors Corporation.

More than one of the leading women stars of the United States had ambitions to play the stellar role in "Paddy-the-Next-Best-Thing," Gertrude Page's famous novel and stage play of the same title, but they were beaten in the market by the English company, Graham Wilcox Productions, Ltd. Mae Marsh has been generally acclaimed as the ideal "Paddy," and the critics also are agreed that this is the finest characterization which she has yet achieved.

The spirit of "Paddy," as a matter of fact, so infected the production that the usually staid and monotonous business of "shooting" the picture was full of rollicking fun and amusing as well as exciting incidents, the real spirit of gaiety all the time pervading the studio floor and the locations in County O'Meath, Ireland, where the exteriors all were made.

Everyone who has seen "Paddy-the-Next-Best-Thing," is struck by the realistic nature of the thrills provided by the equally realistic escapades of Paddy. The reason for this lies in the fact that in staging these adventures there happened to be more unrehearsed effects than have ever been previously experienced by a star of the type of Mae Marsh.

"Caution Regarding Treatment of Dog Bites"

"Carelessness in the method of cauterization of dog bites, especially during the prevalence of rabies, is endangering the lives of a considerable number of people. The most effective acid and almost the only one recommended by the highest authorities is fuming nitric acid. Cauterization by this method should never be neglected as in many cases it will prevent the development of the disease," said J. L. Pomeroy, county health officer.

"The State Board of Health and other authorities are unanimous that the use of nitric acid as soon after the bite as possible is effective in a large percentage of cases. This does not obviate the individual taking the Pasteur treatment but only helps to prevent the entrance of the organism into the body. Both methods should be used together.

"The average individual does not distinguish the difference in strength between cauterizing acids. Many persons have used home remedies, such as carbolic acid, iodine, or peroxide of hydrogen, thinking that this was all that was necessary. Some physicians also fall into this error. The discovery that nitric acid is the most successful cauterizing agent should be widely accepted."

Curing your Golf Troubles

By Jim Barnes

Dear Mr. Barnes:

Will you explain for me briefly what the results are of moving the left hand further over toward the right in gripping the club? Also of moving the right over toward the left—that is—more on top of the shaft? When is either advisable? T. B. M.

Answer:

Generally speaking, moving the left hand further over toward the right strengthens the left, while moving the right over toward the left cuts down its power.

A simple experiment will prove this to you. Hold your left arm straight down in front of the body, palm facing the right. Now try to sweep it toward the left.

Then with the arm in the same position turn the palm more inward the body and sweep it swiftly toward the left. The increase in power will be noticeable.

Inversely the two experiments with the right will show that with the palm turned in toward the body, there is less power.

Moving the left over toward the right will help to prevent a slice for one thing. On long strokes it helps to lend power to the swing. On the other hand, where you have a tendency to hook or smother the ball, moving the right over to the left will help correct this trouble, but it will rob the stroke of a part of its power.

Other results may come from either, but they are generally tied up with other considerations that make it rather hard to say that these changes of themselves produce the results.

Hays, secretary-treasurer of the union, prepared for the union's sixty-eighth convention to be held in Atlanta, Ga., August 13 to 18.

Average earnings per member for the year were $1,919.23 as against an average of $1,795.44 for the year 1922.

Benefits for the membership in the year totaled 94 per cent of all expenditures of the union, the report says, beneficial items being listed as the mortuary benefits, strike benefits assistance, old age pensions and the Union Printers' Home upkeep. Money expended for purposes other than those amounted to $6.92 per member, it was said.

The total membership of the union, which covers the United States and Canada, is given as 78,144, a decrease of 602 from the year 1922. The docrement is accounted for by the number suspended or expelled in the year. There are registered at headquarters of the union 23,117 persons, previously members, who now stand suspended or expelled.

That the average lifetime in the printing craft is being steadily extended by reforms accomplished in working and living conditions is asserted by the secretary-treasurer, who offers a table showing that the average age at death in the trade in the last year was 54.40 as against 41.25 in 1900. Years from 1900 to the present one show later average ages for each year. Death benefits were paid for 804 members in the last year, the average of continuous membership in the union among that number being 18.02. The average age of 4,281 applicants for pensions was 64.3 years.

The Union Printers' Home at Colorado Springs received $245,321 from the union's finances in the last year. The home was established in 1890 and since that time $2,853,358 has been expended on its upkeep and improvement. At the present time a new hospital is being constructed at the home.

Secretary-Treasurer Hays congratulates the union on the present standing of the organization.

"Progress has been made in the Saturday half-holiday contest during the last year," he says in the report. "We have passed the point of loss of membership and are now climbing back and within a short time, I have no doubt, we will have reached once more in April, 1921, peak.

"The past two years have been very trying ones to the officers of the subordinate unions where strikes have been in existence. The patience of these officers has been sorely taxed but they have proved worthy of the confidence reposed in them."

IBANEZ'S GREAT FILM SUNDAY AT GATEWAY

One of the most artistic and lavish attractions yet made by Cosmopolitan Productions is its film version of Vicente Blasco Ibanez's latest novel, "Enemies of Women," which will be screened at the Gateway Theater, beginning Sunday. Cosmopolitan has made every effort to make "Enemies of Women" one of the most beautiful pictures ever made. It is being distributed by Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan. The action of the picture takes place in Monte Carlo, in Nice, Paris and in Russia. In order to have the locations entirely accurate, the entire company was sent to Europe and spent six weeks in Monte Carlo, Nice and Paris.

The famous Spanish novelist himself aided Director Alan Crosland in obtaining permission from the authorities of Monte Carlo to take scenes at the Casino, on the terrace of the gardens as well as scenes of the Prince of Monaco's palace. The result is that "Enemies of Women" on the scenic side is a thing of beauty.

The interior sets were made on a lavish scale. These were designed by the noted Viennese artist and designer of theatrical and operatic sets, Joseph Urban. His set for the palace of Prince Lubimoff is one of the most gorgeous ever built for a motion picture. In it the abilities of this master craftsman are revealed at their best. The set of the Prince's villa at Monaco is just as beautiful in its way, but not on so big a scale as the palace set. The decorations, costuming and lighting of these scenes were under the direction of Mr. Urban. Many of the gowns worn by Alma Rubens in "Enemies of Women" were created by Poiret in Paris from designs by Mrs. Gretl Thurlow, daughter of Mr. Urban. They were aided by Miss Rubens herself in designing and making the gowns, which are some of the most striking and beautiful ever worn in a motion picture.

RAILROADS MAY GET GOAT ISLE

[By Associated Press]

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., August 9.—Goat Island, in San Francisco bay, formerly a naval training station, will not be used as the main operating base for the twelfth district, according to navy men here, who state that lack of adequate transportation facilities make the abandoned island useless for an operating base.

"The Rodman board report recommended Alameda as the proper site for the naval operating base," said one navy officer. "Nothing will be done in regard to Goat Island until the Alameda site has been definitely assured by congress. However, the main factor for a naval base is good railroad supply facilities, and it is obvious that Goat Island falls short of the fundamental requirement."

The virtual abandonment of Goat Island by the navy has brought forth the suggestion that the bay islet be used as a terminus for trans-continental railroads. The railroad moles run out into the bay within two miles of the island today, and the water between the end of the present moles and the island is uniformly shallow, railroad officials point out. Approximately two miles would be cut off the ferry trip between the Oakland moles and San Francisco if Goat Island were use as a terminus, railroad men state.

However, naval officials say that that no one railroad will be given a monopoly of Goat Island in event it is thrown open to the transportation companies. All railroads will be given an equal right to use the island as terminal base. But the island could not used as a railroad terminus if the navy made use of it as a naval base.

Navy officers have received no instructions regarding the disposition of the $1,000,000 worth of government buildings on Goat Island. However, before any action is taken in regard to the Alameda site the island probably will be used jointly by marine and navy detachments.

EASTERN TROUT EGGS EXCHANGED FOR CALIF. FRY

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27.—The California fish and game commission has just announced a trade with New Jersey in which Jersey sent 1,000,000 eastern brook trout eggs to this state, for hatching, in exchange for an equal number of Loch Leven trout eggs.

The eastern brook trout is especially adapted to California waters, while the Loch Leven with the brown trout is about the only species of trout that thrive in eastern rivers, practically all of which are contaminated with sewage.

The fish and game commission also announced it had secured some eggs of the Great Lakes trout, the Mackinaw species, which commonly grows to 15 to 20 pounds in size, with some individuals caught in the lakes weighing 50 to 80 pounds. Anglers wanting real sport will haunt streams where the Mackinaw is planted, as it is a huge and a real fighter. In past years eggs have been planted in Tahoe and the Truckee basin.

RIBBON GIRDLER

Ribbon girdles that fasten with a large rose of the ribbon and have long floating ends are made of ribbon with a silver edge. They come in various colors.

ERMINE ON CLOCHE HATS

Touches of ermine in beige as well as white appear on cloche hats of brown and black straw.

The girl on the front steps is now very much in evidence. The season is at hand when she stoops to conquer.

THE MIND AND CANCER

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE
Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1923, by The Associated Newspapers)

More and more insistently the thought comes to me that if the cancer problem ever is to be solved it may only be through close study of the part possibly played by emotional strain and conflict as a predisposing or contributory factor in the development of malignant growths.

Certainly in view of the known action of distressing mental states on bodily processes this possibility would seem to merit serious consideration by cancer investigators.

As shown by Pavloff, Cannon and other physiologists, such emotions and sentiments as fear, worry, grief, anger, rage, envy, jealousy and shame profoundly affect the workings of vital organs. Through their influence there may be established a mal-functioning so severe as to lead to grave disabilities of the heart, stomach, kidneys and other organs.

In particular, experimental research goes to show, emotional disturbances influence adversely the glands of internal secretion, those diminutive but potent regulators of the vital activity. It certainly is not beyond the limits of conceivability that emotional derangement of glandular action may, by itself or in combination with other factors, cause the occurrence of cancer.

Only a short while ago, attending a medical convention, I heard an eminent New York physician describe a case of suggestive significance in this connection.

It was the case of a woman afflicted with a lameness supposed to be of hysterical origin. She was undoubtedly a psycho-neurotic, but X-ray examination showed that the lameness was due to a bony growth.

At the same time the poor woman was in such a nervous condition that treatment to give her greater emotional control seemed imperatively needed. Presently the discovery was made that her nervousness had its roots in domestic trouble. Various means were taken to help her react to this less violently and at the same time to lessen the occurrence of her unhappiness.

Gradually her nervousness diminished, and at the same time a surprising fact was noticed. X-ray pictures began to show, and continued to show, an appreciable reduction in the size of the bony growth that had been crippling her, the lameness becoming less and less as the growth decreased.

The coincidence may, of course, be one of chance alone. Assuredly, though, it suggests that inquiry might well be made with regard to the presence or absence of severe emotional stresses in the life of persons attacked by cancer, and the degree of emotional control previously displayed by them.

Casting back in memory through the list of acquaintances of my own who have succumbed to cancer I recall few who have not had some great emotional shock shortly before the cancerous growth made its appearance. Again one must recognize the possibility of mere chance coincidence. But one cannot help wondering.

It is notorious that, despite marked advances in diagnosis and treatment, cancer has of late years been steadily increasing. It is equally notorious that, with the ever greater complexity of modern life, causes of emotional stress have multiplied while no special effort has been made to fit men and women through training to withstand emotional stress.

Hence, bearing in mind the already established influence of emotional disturbances on the bodily health, it seems indeed a justifiable suspicion that in many cases the mental state may have much to do with the onset of cancer. In which event, manifestly, the problem of cancer control would become to some extent a problem of more effective education for character and for self-mastery.

PACIFIC COAST HAS BUILDING REDUCTION

July Figures Show 18 Per Cent Less Than June Total

Pacific coast cities as a group have reported a reduction in building activities during July amounting to 18 per cent less than the total for June, responding to the customary seasonal depression of the midsummer period, but in comparison with the figures of last year the totals for the past month show an increase of 40 per cent, as disclosed by the monthly building survey of S. W. Straus & company completed yesterday.

The twenty-three California cities included in the July report returned a total of $28,438,896 in building permits. The totals from these cities for July of last year was $19,480,713, while the total for June of this year was $32,738,467. This gives California a reduction of but 15 per cent under June and an increase of 46 per cent over last July.

Los Angeles reports $15,083,273 in new building permits issued during July, which is $8,827 more than for the previous month and an 87 per cent increase over last July. The other California cities which show an increase over June are Alameda, Alhambra, Richmond, Riverside and Sacramento, all of which also show very substantial increases over last July, and Stockton which reports a slight decrease from last July.

Long Beach, reporting a total of $1,377,322 for July, shows a loss of 59 per cent from the previous month, but a gain of 156 per cent over July of 1922. San Diego reports a slight loss from the previous month but a substantial gain over last July as does also Santa Ana. Other California cities reporting show slight reductions from both June and last July.

Indications that extensive building activities will keep up throughout the country are shown in the reports of building permits issued in July in 239 leading cities of the country. These official reports made yesterday to S. W. Straus & Co., reveal a gain in reporting cities of 14.4 per cent over corresponding month last year and loss of 4.4 per cent from June of this year. The loss since June, however, is in keeping with the usual trend of building between these two months.

Eastern states reported gains of 23.4 per cent over July last year and loss of 3.4 per cent since June. The central states gained 1.15 per cent over last July while the change as between June and July was negligible. In southern states there was loss of 7 per cent from July last year and loss of 1 per cent from June.

Among the important cities reported in the survey, New York led with $51,623,832, a gain over July a year ago of $17,601,501 and less from June of $5,759,171. Chicago's permits in July were $16,495,150, which represents negligible gain over July last year and an equally moderate loss from June a year ago. Los Angeles again ranked third in July permits issued, a gain over last year of over $7,000,000 and negligible gain over June.

DISTURBED

I'm goin' to see the Doctor—I'm ninety year old today,
An' I ain't as spry as I orto be when I'm out in the field, someway.
I ain't never seen a Doctor in all of my whole life through,
Except to bid 'em the time o' day and mebbe say "Howdy do."
But I ain't as spry in the mornin' as I know I orto be,
And once in a while I git a twinge down there in my hip or knee;
An' mebbe it's old age comin' on, an' a touch of rheumatiz,
But I'm goin' to see the Doctor and ask him what it is.

I can do my turn at plowin', and my appetite is good,
I ain't lost my knack o' fellin' trees and choppin' up furnace wood;
I can stack up hay with the next man, and stack it smooth and right,
But I'm kind o' tired in the mornin' and sleepy like at night.
I'm a little stiff in my knee j'ints, and I ache some now and then,
And mebbe it's old age comin' on, as it does to most o' men.
But at ninety I ought to be good and strong without any rheumatiz,
An' I'm goin' to see the Doctor and find out what it is.

My eyesight's clear as ever and I can lift my heft,
And mebbe I've lost a couple of teeth but I got some good ones left.
I've lived on this old farm fifty years, and I've had my work and play,
But in all my time I never worked more 'n sixteen hours a day;
And now I am only ninety and healthy right up to date,
And I got to git tired in the mornin' and take to sleepin' late!
And here on my ninetieth birthday I git th' rheumatiz,
And I got to go see the Doctor and find out why it is!

Truths in Epigram

Blood of the martyrs is the seed of the Church. — Tertullian.

Forward as occasion offers. Never look around to see whether any shall note it.—Marcus Aurelius.

He (Pliny the Elder) used to say that "no book was so bad that some good might be got out of it."—Pliny the Younger.

THE GRADE CROSSING

Grim facts are emphasizing the certainty that railroad construction of the future will have to be without the present sanguinary adjunct of grade crossings. The record does not change greatly, keeping about at a level in the matter of fatalities. Occasionally, however, there is a day when the tragedies make a total fearfully impressive. Such a day was last Sunday, when the deaths, so far as reported Monday, were twenty-four. A single train on the Pennsylvania caused thirteen of the deaths, in two separate disasters several hours apart. There were six such accidents, in each an automobile being struck by a train.

Experience has made clear that there is no method of making a grade crossing safe. A mechanical device may get out of order, a watchman may fall asleep. Anyhow there are automobilists so reckless than they crash through gates, or make a watchman dodge for his life. If all drivers were to exercise care, as suggested by reasonable intelligence, there would be few smashes even at grade crossings. In every group of drivers there is at least one whose folly subjects himself and others to constant danger. It is useless to affirm that he ought to have better sense; he hasn't better sense, nor may the lacking mentality be drilled into him.

Every day on the highways and beaches the antics of the reckless drivers may be observed. These pests menace a countless number of others besides themselves. They ignore the rules of the road. They plunge ahead if they think they see a chance to pass one car in a long parade of cars. Often they thrust themselves directly in the path of traffic moving in the opposite direction, causing confusion that involves both moving lines. Or they pass on the wrong side, seeking to break into the line again when the operation may be extremely risky. These are the types that in approaching a grade crossing show the judgment that might be expected of lunatics. While they have a chance to indulge in suicidal and homicidal activities, they will do it. The only remedy is to deprive them of the chance so far as this may be possible. Abolition of the grade crossing would be a help.

DEPRAVED POLITICS AND JOURNALISM

Never has the fact that yellow journalism is the instrument and abettor of rotten politics been more clearly shown that in recent conduct of the Hearst papers.

The exhibition occurred at a time when conditions lent peculiar emphasis to its depravity. It was as the President of the United States lay dying at San Francisco. Millions of people awaited with affectionate eagerness, word from the bedside of the patient. The doctors in charge told the truth so far as it had been made apparent to their trained senses. Some representatives of the press did not tell the truth. They caused to be printed the statement that the President had been in delirium. Thus they endeavored at a critical moment to indicate his mental irresponsibility. It was deemed desirable to do this because the President, ill, but in full possession of his faculties, had determined to issue a statement. Hearst did not want the statement issued. When he could not prevent, he determined that the circumstances under which it would seem to be issued, should be such as to discredit it. Therefore his minions created a state of delirium for this distinguished man close to death. The doctors demanded a retraction, which appeared in a single edition, and was in no sense a confession of the guilt of the yellow press.

The objection to the President's statement was that it was known to controvert, not in bitterness, but with fact and concomitant argument, assertions that had been made by Senator Johnson. Johnson had not spared the President, but to the full extent of his power had attacked and sought to belittle him and the administration. He was afraid of the answer. He was fearful that it would expose him to the people of his home town. Johnson's sponsors were frantic. They sought to reach the President, but such unseemly intrusion was thwarted. Then they sought, covertly, and by inuendo, to poison the public mind in regard to the executive whom they could not sway.

Could political villainy have contrived a plot more indecent? Had yellow journalism in all its career of shame, touched a level more despicable?

THE DUTY OF INTELLIGENCE

Dr. Edwin Mims, head of the English department in Vanderbilt university, is one among many instructors of note who by their lives make denial that the modern professor has no freedom of thought. Connected with a great educational institution, to which must be attributed the disadvantage of the great wealth that is supposed to curb the mind and direct the activities of a professor, he is not held in thrall. On the contrary he believes in the utmost freedom of speech, the fullest expression of intelligence. He not only says this, but his practice evinces his sincerity.

The moral obligation to be intelligent is as great as the moral obligation to be good, asserted Dr. Mims in a recent lecture. He criticized adversely the tendency of Christian educational schools to emphasize the word "Christian," and to minimize education. He described this as leading to physical laziness, mental flabbiness and an indifference that amounts to irresponsibility. The student should be taught to think; not merely to echo the thoughts of others, and thus made to imagine that he is thinking. It is his right to scan all sides of a question, rather than to accept the hypothesis that one decision touching the matter is right, and all the others must be wrong. Such a decision must have been reached by men subject to reaction to other conditions than now prevail.

To be a successful teacher one necessarily has ideals. This in itself argues the possession of perceptive faculties, and not merely those of receptivity. The teacher who has undertaken his calling merely as a means of livelihood is a failure; the real teached is above price. The second teacher could not consent to have his opinions formulated for him, and to act as a mere agent in passing them along.

Such are a few of the points of an address in every way illuminating, and going far to maintain the dignity, and define the province of a high profession.

Pictures of President Coolidge on his father's Vermont farm show him in a quaint costume suggestive of Holland, and probably never seen by any American farmer outside of New England. But he certainly works as hard as any hired man in that singular uniform.

Late cables state that the Ruhr crisis is at hand. The average reader of newspapers has had reason to believe that it took that place long ago, and has been right there ever since.

PACIFYING OR CO-OPERATION

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

Did you ever watch a mother trying to pacify her baby?

The technique is the same the world around; she either diverts its attention from the thing it wants or promises that it shall possess it in the future—date indefinite.

Estelle Lawton Lindsey

It works with the kids and the mothers see no harm in it, but many a friendship, many a home, many a marriage has been wrecked on the psychology engendered by this performance, for its basis is fraud.

The man who promises his fiance to give up smoking after marriage, the girl who declares that she will be content to do her own work and stay at home continuously, both learned the trick at their mothers' knees. The man does not mean to quit smoking; the girl has no idea of abandoning her gaieties. Each is pacifying the other, than is all.

And it is the pacifying psychology that prevents honest adjustment between man and wife. All differences of opinion are met by promises to change, but no honest effort toward change is made. What is made is a steady effort by each to make the other believe that endeavors to change have been futile.

The slovenly housekeeper who promises when reproached that she will strive to keep her home tidy and beautiful means that she will try to cover up her bad management and so soothe her husband. The tight wad who promises to give his wife a fixed sum to spend as she pleases means that he will indeed hand her some money on, say Monday, but he intends either to borrow it back on Tuesday or else invent some method of making her pay it out for the household expenses.

Parents are themselves notorious sinner in his method of deception and are of all people the most deeply grieved when it brings them disaster. "I can't" is part and parcel of this form of deception. Those who say they can't mean that they can't because they haven't tried and they hope the lie will not be discovered by others.

Among my acquaintances is a man whose ungovernable temper made his home a hell for 30 years. At the end of this time his wife inherited or acquired financial independence and served notice on him that the next outburst would leave him in lonely possession of the home place.

She meant it. The outburst came and she left and with her the children who were old enough to choose their own residence. It took three years of desolation to convince the man that his dishonesty had wrecked his life, and then he called on his wife and made an honest promise to control his temper. Following their reconciliation he lived five years and never once indulged in a tantrum, which shows that he had never before made an honest effort. He had merely been placating, and not co-operating with his wife to secure harmony in the home.

A slovenly girl also underwent a seemingly miraculous change in character when she married a careful, conservative business man who wanted an orderly home, provided the means to secure it and insisted that his wife do her part to provide it.

This girl has been the despair of her mother and the thorn in the side of her circle of friends; she was thoughtless, indifferent and untidy to a degree. To all protests she returned the same reply, "I can't remember."

But she could and she did, because she had to; remembering was the price of marital success.

All of which shows that dishonesty rather than weakness is back of failures. And the psychology back of such dishonesty had its inception in the experiences of infancy.

"When I became a man I put away childish things."

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

GOOD ENGLISH AN ART

Speech is like music. Good speech is art as truly as is music, sculpture, or painting. It is beautiful; pleasant to the ear: it marks a man or woman of refinement.

As there are different types of music, so there are different types of speech. There are rag-time music and jazz; there are rag-time speech and jazz-speech. But there are also both music and speech that have a permanent home among the fine arts.

The question for one to decide is whether one is willing to live in an atmosphere of speech-discord and vulgarity or strive to perfect one's mode of expression that one may be thought of as an artist in everything undertaken and be treated accordingly.

Answer: Either one is correct. If you are desirous of a further discussion of this problem, communicate again with "The Right Word."

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

JAMES W. FOLEY

Earth to earth.
Ashes to ashes.
Dust to dust.
Rather gloomy, you would say.
But not so intended.
Intended rather to be instructive.

* * *

It would be a good thing perhaps if every man could keep something of that thought in his mind.

The ruler on his throne.
The banker in his counting house.
The merchant at his shelf.
The general with his army.
The statesman in his office.

* * *

For men pass away.
Honors are temporal.
Dignities fail.
Authority falls from dead hands.
Sceptres tarnish.
Swords rust.
Only the great human procession moves on.

* * *

Something of that great if solemn truth kept steadfastly before the mind's eye would mean less of arrogance.

Less of greed.
Less of cruelty.
More of human love.
More of tenderness and sympathy.

* * *

For the ruler would realize that in a little while his dust would rest in the tomb.

The banker would know how little wealth avails when the shadow of death falls across the threshold.

The merchant would realize that the greatest wealth of the earth is not in goods and wares.

Yet all of them have their important places.

The thing is to realize that business is not all of life, but merely an important incident.

That the tomorrow of which we take so much thought may not come.

That a good deal should not be delayed.

That the sword rusts in the sheath and leaves no great human problem solved.

* * *

The unmistakable attribute of greatness is humility.

Little and egotistic persons go strutting across the field like turkey cocks the day befor Thanksgiving.

Little minds, little beliefs, little greeds, little hatreds, little souls.

Sizzling and sounding in the pan like bits of frying fat.

And of no more importance in the scheme of the universe.

* * *

The favorite poem of America's greatest patriot, statesman and man, was a poem of Humility:

"Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?"

And the selection of the poem proved the quality of the man.

* * *

Events must move.

The human procession passes on.

As it has been doing for tens of thousands of years.

We live our little days.
Love our little loves.
Do our little tasks.
And then night and darkness and sleep.

* * *

And how fortunate we are if Love lays a blossom where we rest and Memory lets fall a tear!

Songs of the Poets

Lullaby—By Alfred Tennyson

Sweet and low, sweet and low,
Wind of the western sea,
Low, low, breathe and blow,
Wind of the western sea!
Over the rolling waters go,
Come from the dying moon, and blow,
Blow him again to me:
While my little one, while my pretty one, sleeps.

Sleep and rest, sleep and rest,
Father will come to thee soon;
Rest, rest, on mother's breast,
Father will come to thee soon;
Father will come to his babe in the nest,
Silver sails all out of the west
Under the silver moon:
Sleep, my little one, sleep, my pretty one, sleep.

THE WISH TO SURPRISE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

DID you ever run across one of those people to whom everything in the almanac and encyclopedia has happened?

The itch for causing surprise grows on one. When one has once tasted of the fatal applause that comes when he relates some marvelous lie, it is easy to taste the cup again and again.

I knew a preacher once who told of many wonderful adventures that had befallen him in various times and countries. A mean deacon who heard him regularly, made a note of all the autobiographical instances his pastor gave. One day he added up and found that the parson who seemed a youngish man, under forty, must be 175 years old, and must often have been seven times around the world, and must often have been in two or three places at the same time.

The good man did not mean to lie. He simply had an assimilative personality; all the vivid anecdotes he heard he annexed. This made him mightily interesting. He was even born, by his own collocated accounts, in two or three places, for he liked to be born in the same town as his auditor.

He is now bishop or something of the sort. His miraculous experiences were really an asset.

There is in all of us an inborn desire to cause sensation. Few of us can tell a thing exactly as it happened—no more, no less. We instinctively add a dramatic touch.

I do not know that this is exactly lying. Your genuine lie implies a deliberate deception with some sort of immoral or unjust motive.

When you tell Mr. Bonebrick that you have seen his wife running about a good deal recently with Mr. Updike, and when you intend to imply by it that she and Mr. Updike are a little too thick, and when, as a matter of fact, you have never seen them together but once or twice, you are lying. You are bearing false witness against your neighbor, all the more false because there is about 5 per cent of truth in it. Very few 100 per cent falsehoods get across.

But when you tell your June-Spice that her eyes are like deep pools, her brow is like the snow-drift and her neck is like the swan, and when, as a matter of fact, she is just an ordinary flapper, you are not lying. You are drawing the long bow, perhaps, but the arrow you shoot is not going to hurt anybody and may cause your June-Spice to be very favorably inclined to allow you to hold her hand.

Most of us, however, in the ordinary affairs of life find it difficult to trim our statements down to actual verity, and find it somewhat annoying that other people tend to exaggerate.

So common is this trait that historians suspect any data that are too interesting. The temptation to tell a thumping yarn is a little more than the average writer of history can resist.

We all naturally love to cause surprise. And it is rather difficult to square this tendency with perfect truthfulness.

(Copyright, 1923, by Dr. Frank Crane)

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

DOOR TO CHINA

[New York Commercial]

Manila properly utilized can be transformed into a great American trade outpost in Asia. It is not so utilized, now. After twenty-five years under the flag, Manila is still playing second fiddle to competing foreign ports in Asia. From the American standpoint, that is bad business.

Manila cannot be divorced from the United States during the next ten years. Much can happen in ten years. Ten years hence, granted the right encouragement, the Filipinos will probably be as eager for American annexation as the unmoneyed masses are now eager for independence. American business has ten years within which it can build up a booming entrepot for its Asiatic trade.

Manila is our real "Open Door" to China. Every American industry should be well represented in the Philippine metropolis. Every American product should be exhibited at Manila. It is only a cat's jump from Manila to Canton. The Manila-Canton route for American trade should be developed, and at once.

Japan's trade in China is based upon the Kobe-Dairen and Fusan-Dairen routes England bases her trade on Hong Kong, which she owns, and on Shanghai, which she controls. Trade does follow the flag—when it is wide awake.

Wake up, American Business. Establish the right sort of headquarters for your business at Manila. Branch out in China and get your share of China's business.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Recently there was a thunder storm in Chicago during which lightning struck a number of times, resulting in three deaths, and extensive damage to property.

HENRY JAMES

People after having lived in southern California for a term of years almost forget that the spectacle of lightning is common elsewhere, and that disaster often follows. Yet when they read of such a storm they do not get excited about it. They do not, if in the newspaper business, issue special editions, red-inked, to tell the world of the awful calamity that has befallen. Were they to repay attentions in kind they would do this.

Not long ago this region was slightly aware of a passing quiver of earthquake, of the sort known as a temblor. It did not hurt a soul. It did not inflict any material damage. Not a chimney tottered, nor a pane of glass cracked. Yet in the territory subject to visitations of lightning, to devastating winds, and to floods of vast proportions, the event was heralded as though a world catastrophe.

Four hundred and fifty tons of steel will be required to make the automobile plates required for California for 1924. This means that there will be 1,250,000 pairs of the plates.

Nebraska has far fewer than this, and yet the statistician has figured out that automobiles have wrought the financial ruin of Nebraska, while California hasn't been ruined a bit. Maybe the fancy figurer's figures are wrong.

A Los Angeles policeman has been arrested on a charge of robbery. It stands to reason that a policeman who spends his hours off-duty to commit violent crimes, is not a proper guardian of the public safety. He is wearing the wrong sort of uniform.

Adverse comment has been made on the fact that although Emerson Hough is dead, his stories continue to be printed. It is not in the least curious that the product of his pen should keep on appearing. It may for some time yet. There is every probability that he had manuscripts ahead. Possibly the thing will be overdone, as in the case of David Graham Phillips, or O. Henry. Various stories were published as having come from these writers, and the pretense kept up as long as the public would stand for the quality of the spurious yarns.

* * *

A reporter wrote the other day that Mayor Cryer "had crossed the Rubicon."

Too highly figurative. The plain truth seems to be that the mayor tried to cross a dirty stream of politics, and fell in.

The other night three footpads tackled a railway conductor. He broke the jaw of the first, licked the other two, and assisted the police to round up the lot in jail.

It is a safe bet that few succeed in beating their way on that energetic conductor's train.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

THE STARS

These are the nights, from now on until the weather gets too cold to put one's nose outside, to study the stars. Even if you don't know a single thing about them, take the children out and let them gaze at them twinkling there in the soft dull blue, countless miles away from us. Let them speculate about them and wonder and ask questions. At least and at most they will learn: "The heavens declare the glory of God."

There is always the Big Dipper and the Bear and the evening star and the moon. Once started charts and maps will help. A pair of glasses are a wonderful revelation. The more powerful they are the greater the revelation.

The color of the moon deepens. It is no longer the pale maiden. There is a glimpse of power and a hint of mystery in the depths and shadows of a glowing thing which until then, we had thought of as a silver of pale light useful on summer evenings as a property of parties on the lawn or the lake. Awe steals over us and we remember that wise men have said that that pale silver was once a burning earth. Perhaps?

But the ground is no place to study the heavens. You climb to the roof and look again through your glasses and find you've in some way gotten nearer than the puny height of the house would infer. Perhaps the nearness is coming to your mind through the very attempt to approach and study the burning mysteries.

The pleiades—they look like a mark left by a huge eraser scraping the surface of the sky—separate themselves into stars with little trails of star mist floating about them. They are the daughters of Atlas who carries the world on his shoulders.

The records say there were seven but no one has been able to find the seventh one. Perhaps she slipped out of the heavens and went to comfort her father as he strained at his task.

We know so little about the heavens that we, like our fathers before us fall back on the myths and legends to satisfy the questions they raise in our minds.

But the wonder and reverence they call out can be answered only by little human creatures like us. We turn from the telescope with a feeling that somewhere, somehow, there is a power that works in beauty and order and splendor that defies our comprehension.

We can but bow to it and trust that the spirit that rules the heavens takes thought of the creatures of earth.

But the children ought to have what experience they can gather from the contemplation of the stars. Too often we neglect giving it to them because we know so little. There is a man in a little seaside town who built a telescope on his roof and invited the neighbors to bring their children there on summer and fall evenings to gaze and be thrilled.

Wouldn't a telescope on the roof of the school be a fine gift for the parents' association to give the children?

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Two men sat behind me at a little vaudeville show the other night. Both, evidently, were musicians. They talked the patter. They spoke of fugues and obligatos and the like with the careless nonchalance shown by stableboys toward very costly race horses.

"You had a bit of hard luck," said one.

"Maybe not," said the other, cheerfully. "It's too early to say for certain. Let's wait and see."

I pieced out his story from the snatches of conversation. He had been a violinist. His fellow musicians believed him certain of a career. Then he went to war, and, what with one thing and another, his hands were ruined. Pick-handles and rifle-barrels do not intensify the delicate sensibilities of a fiddler's fingers. When his service ended he tried to pick up his violin again.

"But it is no use," said he. "Bless your heart, you'd cry to hear me now."

So he went to work in a store. A good many youngsters—and he is still young, for I got a good look at him—would have spent their lives whimpering over the tragedy of that failure. He is not whimpering at all. His fingers may come back, he said. He is working with them. Anyhow, if he is a real musician that means nothing. One of the greatest composers did his best bit of work after he had become totally deaf.

"And I may have been fortunately saved from being a third-rater," he said courageously. "I would not like to be a mere fiddler. No matter what I may be, I propose to get somewhere near the top."

It wasn't bunkum, either. The man meant business. But it isn't every man who can take that sort of a smash like a man. Or like a philosopher. After all, as he said, it is too early yet to say whether his luck had been good or bad.

MRS. MALLORY MAY LOSE TENNIS CROWN

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (United Press).—While Mrs. Molla Mallory has been a rather disappointing standard-bearer for American tennis in international competition, she has held out for years impregnably against the American girls who disputed her right to the national championship.

Previous to the coronation of Bill Tilden as the tennis king of practically the whole world, the American men's title, over a stretch of six years, was passed around among a small group of stars, including McLoughlin, Williams, Johnston and Murray.

During the same time, Mrs. Mallory was gathering a succession of triumphs in the women's class that had only one interpretation, in 1919, when Mrs. George Wightman won the championship.

Other women starts, during her long reign as the queen of the American courts were known and admitted to have more strokes, better execution and a more polished game, but they lacked the aggressiveness, the winning temperament and the physical qualifications to stand up against Mrs. Mallory.

After the American champion had proved her superiority over the best of the native born Americans near her own age, it became apparent that she would continue to reign until some young player was developed or until her game began to slip.

As the visiting British girls and the American contenders for the title began to warm up in the tournaments, preliminary to the national championship, it begins to look like Mrs. Mallory is at last in real danger of losing her grip on the cup.

From her failure to live up to form in her early season play on European courts, it might be concluded that Mrs. Mallory's game has passed the peak. It must be remembered, however, that on her first trip to Europe she was just recovering from an attack of influenza, and athletic trainers say that the effects of "flu" weaken the constitution for months and months.

ARE PLANNING TO SAVE COUNTRY'S TIMBER

Reforestation, in behalf of which engineers are waging a nation-wide campaign, is a chief problem of the Federated American Engineering societies.

The chairman of the Federation's reforestation committee, Charles M. MacDowell of Chicago, is directing the work of co-ordinating numerous national and local agencies to save America's forests from extinction.

The original virgin timber of the United States, it is estimated by the engineers, was approximately 50,000 feet per capita of 100,000,000.

Today the merchantable timber supply is about 25,000 per capita.

Of that amount, less than 20,000 per capita is virgin, or original timber.

In other words, the virgin timber supply per capita of 100,000,000 is now only 40 per cent of the original.

Originally there were approximately ten acres of virgin forests to the person for a 100,000,000 population.

Today there are only five acres of virgin and of second and third growths per capita, a reduction of 50 per cent, in the acreage of all timber growth.

The present acreage consists of approximately 30 per cent of first growth, 25 of second growth in a fair reproduction condition, 20 of second growth of inferior or questionable value, and 15, or 80,000,000 acres of waste land without suitable seed trees, and hence will not reproduce timber through the working of nature.

That acreage has been burned over many times and, therefore, presents a difficult problem of reforestation.

The virgin forests of the United States originally covered about half of the land area of the country.

Today, only about a fourth of the land area is so covered.

The federal government and states own about a third of the existing virgin forests.

The remainder is privately owned.

Lumber manufacturers and timberland owners probably own not less than 80 per cent of the privately owned forest lands.

America is in danger of becoming dependent on foreign supplies, according to L. W. Wallace, executive secretary of the Federations and vice chairman of the Hoover Committee on Elimination of Waste in Industry, who declares that waste may be eliminated by the paper and pulp industry.

SMART HATS

As flattering in color as they are smart in shape are new hats of a fine rather loosely wooven straw trimmed with pleated lengths of georgette. These are twisted or braided together to form a band around the crown. There are a number of different color combinations.

HOMES BUILT FOR REST AND COMFORT

The homes of today are sincere homes and it is refreshing to find that the spirit of sever formality and overornateness has passed away and a thoughtfulness as to the need for rest and inspiration for each individual to the family has taken its place, declared a prominent writer recently.

How splendid to find the living room where there is a corner for father between two windows with a comfortable chair, stool, bridge lamp, and table for magazines, papers and books, and maybe there are other things that he may want on that table.

Then for mother's nook a chair that is just right, a little stool, a sewing cabinet, and possibly a small occasional table for her intimate use.

Then a corner set apart for the children where they can be happy with chairs and table and some of their own things.

Of course, the piano must be placed with the keyboard toward the light, the Victrola where the tone vibration will be most satisfying, a desk in a well-lighted corner, and the bookcases where the titles can be easily read.

This is a time when furniture is placed in the most sensible way and it is delightful to find a room with many tables in it.

There are end tables for davenports and chairs, davenports with long tables back of them, consoles and small occasional tables for many uses, and then the sociable little coffee table that when placed near the davenport or fireplace always gives a sense of cozy hominess.

Even the dining room of today is developed with a spirit of rest and freedom, and often we find well-placed by a fireside or window a large comfortable chair and a small table near it.

The breakfast and sun rooms are always the cheeriest rooms in the house and here it is that we find birds and flowers on walls and in draperies and the bright airy furniture of the reed, or painted types.

It is nice to start the day in a cheery little breakfast room where the toast and coffee are made at the table and where the atmosphere is like a bit of nature's out-of-doors, crept in to start you happily on your way.

Somehow, every one can let down and do just as he pleases in the sun room, for here there is nothing that can be marred, little to dust, and so to this room of rooms father likes to come for his smoke and the children can really enjoy life without the dreaded word, "don't."

Make your home a paradise on earth,
With love at the helm as guide,
Where rest and happiness and mirth
With you can all abide.

FROCK PLEATED FROM NECK TO HEM

POT OF GOLD IS WAITING FOR YOU

There's a pot of gold waiting for you at Rainbow Valley.

All you have to do is to go to the tract office in the valley tract and register your name. A number will be picked out of the hat. The holder of the mate to this number will get this very acceptable gift.

This pot of gold will consist of a lot in this choice valley. It will be a place where you can build your permanent abode, your summer cottage or your week-end hide-out.

This lot is worth several hundred dollars. If you register, you may be the lucky winner.

Only those who register Sunday will have a chance of getting this lot, which will be given away Sunday evening.

One of the latest purchasers of a lot in Rainbow Valley is the popular movie star, J. Warren Kerregan, who contemplates building a summer home there.

Further particulars about this offer may be secured from the Berthon company, corner Colorado and Brand, Capt. Stradling, manager, local agent for this tract.

Windows Reflect Real Individuality

The windows of a house are indicative of personality, as the eyes of a man are the barometers of that man's soul, believes a modern writer on homebuilding subjects.

There are gayly happy windows just as there are light-hearted, care-free people.

There are somber windows, prim puritanical windows.

There are the leaded panes and the out-of-doors lover—innocent of obstructing drapery—and secretive windows that defy even the most inquisitive of passers-by.

There are hospitable windows that fairly hold out an eager welcome to the world at large—and dignified, important, self-conscious windows that seem to "size up" people under half-shut lids—in fact, windows are as different in character as people are different and, viewed from the standpoint of individuality, quite as interesting.

The shape, size, spacing and type of window all call for varied treatments and to one who loves fabrics the selection of the dressing for one's window ranks second to choosing a husband.

Having to live with persons or things for an extended period of time makes one wary of hasty choice, and with an infinite variety of materials and patterns the prospective home owner should be doubly careful in selecting just the right thing for either the permanent or temporary dwelling.

Nowadays, no material is too gorgeous, none too lowly for the decorator's earnest consideration.

Calicoes and unbleached muslins are as much used as are taffetas or brocades.

Only one trained in color values can visualize a room hung with figured drapery and very often draperies that are lovely by daylight are quite lacking in character by night light.

NEW LAW MAKES IT EASY, CHEAP TO SECURE TITLE

With the enactment of the law bringing the Torrens title system into California, land owners are enabled to procure title at a much smaller cost than by the system now in vogue. Such a title is an absolute guarantee of ownership and can be brought down to date very quickly.

Speaking of the possibilities of operating a title company under the Torrens law, James W. Bell, president of the State Torrens Title company, 326 California building, says:

"The enthusiasm with which the Torrens title system was greeted in Los Angeles and trade territory is in our opinion proof positive of the regard in which the system is held.

"Furthermore, those closely in touch with the situation are of the opinion that as time goes on the number of titles secured under the workings of the system will grow in a remarkable manner.

"Realizing that a business, with the aid of public confidence and financial backing, operating under the Torrens law, would be a source of extraordinary profits, we have organized the State Torrens Title company.

"In addition to title work under the Torrens Act, title work will be given and abstracts drawn up under the old system where desired.

"Our company will make loans on property protected by Torrens titles. The loans will be made through a large local bank, one of the younger, yet a very powerful financial institution, whose record of growth since its organization has been phenomenal. All our loans must be passed on by the bank, thus insuring businesslike handling of this feature of our business. All interests on loans are to be paid to the bank which handles our funds, and disburses the net surplus which will have accumulated for the purpose, in regularly declared dividends."

GARDEN MUST BE PLEASING

Although a garden should be designed so that it will continue to please, after the intimacies of close and continued acquaintances, it should be built with serious thought for the first impressions it may give.

The first impression may serve the home gardener in a helpful way, for if he experiences an unaccountable feeling of disappointment in the first glimpse of his garden, after an absence he may begin to search for the cause.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the wedding day of Jarge and Ann was drawing nigh. But it was Ann who first spoke about it.

"Dost knaw, Jarge," she said, "it be our silver wedding next week. We ought to ha' a celebration o' sorts that day. Shall us kill the pig?"

Jarge grunted.

"Doan't be a fule, 'ooman," said he. "Whool murder an innocent pig for what 'appened twenty-foive year agone!"

It takes a clever man to pick up an umbrella and walk off with it just as if it belonged to him.

GARDEN MUST SHOW CHARACTER

The portrait painter builds his picture from the separate and individual features of the human faces, but, unless he interprets character and adds it to his picture, it will not be interesting. In like manner, the landscape architest builds his garden from foliage, flowers, ground-forms, sky and water, but unless he assembles them with a knowing skill, the result will lack character. He may add or create character by the point of view from which he displays his garden, by the relative values which his composition gives to different objects, by the interest of detail and by the objects of art which adorn his work.

NATURE USES OWN MATERIAL

Nature, in the building of her landscapes, molds her artistic creations from sky and water, from the many types of ground forms, and from the wide variety of plant life which she has evolved. In his building of artificial gardens, man adds to these materials in trade the various forms of buildings and their accessories which have developed as a result of his use of land and of his conceptions of beauty.

YOUNG GIRLS' DRESSES

Cool and charming are dimity dresses for young girls, sparingly trimmed with net or white organdy. Lavender and white stripes, plaids or blocks are used to fashion these little frocks.

The Torrens Title System

Has made it possible for this company to offer a most unusual, attractive investment offer to several hundred foresighted investors. The enactment of the law which brought this system into being was designed to enable landowners to procure title at a much smaller cost than the system theretofore in vogue—and to obtain title that would be an absolute guarantee of ownership.

The enthusiasm with which the TORRENS TITLE SYSTEM was greeted by thousands right here in Los Angeles is, in our opinion, proof positive of the regard in which the system is held. And it is generally pointed out by those closely in touch with the situation that as time goes on the number of titles secured under the working of this system will grow in a remarkable manner.

The State Torrens Title Company

was organized for the purpose of operating under the law which created the Torrens Title System. In addition to work of this character, however, titles will be given and abstracts drawn up under the old system where desired.

This company will make loans on properties protected by Torrens Titles. The loans will be made through a Large Local Bank—one of the younger yet a very powerful financial institution, whose record of growth since organization has been phenomenal. All loans must be passed on by the Bank, thus insuring business-like handling of this feature of our business. All interest on loans is to be paid to the Bank, which will handle our funds and disburse the net surplus we accumulate for the purpose in regularly declared dividends.

Your familiarity with the business usually carried on by Financial Institutions of this nature must have given you confidence that where properly conducted they offer a source of extraordinary profit. Mortgage Guarantee, Title and Abstract work—these have nearly always proven exceptionally profitable. And the instances in which huge aggregations of wealth have been built up from even a nominal start are too numerous to mention.

Large Profit Possibilities

There are a great many features of our investment offer that make it advisable that you investigate immediately. Full details will be furnished on request. You may obtain them either by calling at our office, phoning or by writing. The IMPORTANT thing, however, is for you to decide AT ONCE to find out about this outstanding offer which may enable you to start on the road to personal financial independence from even a few hundred dollars—and GET IN TOUCH WITH US AT ONCE.

OUTDOOR WORKERS

By CHARLES H. SHINN
U. S. Forestry Service, Northfork, Calif.

In spite of the question to the contrary, there is really everything in a name. Here are a few which have come down the ages—they so exactly describe the men and the work that every one of us has a definite picture in his mind when he hears the name: Farmer, hunter, fisherman, stockman, lumberman. But here are two that have not as yet become definite to everyone who hears them: Ranger, forester.

What does the average man think of when he hears the name "forester?" Either of an officer who has charge of a forest of some sort or of a technically-trained adviser in forest work. What does this same useful character, "the man on the street," think of when someone speaks of a "fanger?" Is it anything more than this: An active outdoor chap rushing around in the parks, forests, woodlands and wherever people take their outings; a sort of outdoors caretaker; a person of whom you can ask help in emergencies; a jack-of-all-trades.

If these statements are true it is high time for the general public, as well as the lexicographers, to revise a few terms.

A "forester" is simply a man who lives for but three things—the fullest care, fullest use, fullest development of a forest, whether private or national. Everything else is subordinated to these principles except for short periods; and, incidentally, he is not a game-warden or a grazing ranger or the caretaker of a recreation camp. He has use for all the education and technical training he has been able to secure, and he adds something to it every day. His closest ally in the long run is the intelligent lumberman. The term "ranger" does not in the least describe him, any more than "cowboy" means the same as "stockman," or "rancher" means "farmer." This "forester" is in reality a "forest man," and much more than a "ranger."

It is true, of course, that the terms "forest ranger," "park ranger," "Texas ranger," have taken their places in our pioneer literature, to which they give an atmosphere of full and reckless adventure. But we think that the time has come when all who carry on the work of our National forests should be thought of as plain forest-men and forest-women.

LET'S ROLL TO THE SEA SHORE THIS WEEK--LONG BEACH IS TRIP OUTLINED

Weather Promises to Be Ideal and Roads Are Good all the Way, So Why Not Fill the Tank of the Old "Cutter" and Head Towards the Sea

LUNGFUL OF SEABREEZE TO BE GOTTEN

Beach at This Resort Is Wide and Clean; It Is Just the Place for the Family Picnic; Jaunt Is 60 Miles of Sure-enough Scenery

"Fair an' warmer."

Sunday promises to be like the last few week-end days have been—ideal for a trip down to the restless Pacific. Whenever the weather begins to warm up the motorists in "these parts" naturally begin to feel the urgent need of a salt bath. That's why the noses of so many "family cars" are turned oceanward about once a week—and maybe oftener.

Considering everything, then, why not plan for a trip down to the beach this week? Nothing but a trip away from home can remove that restless feeling. Such a jaunt would put the motorists in condition to face the trials and worries of the following week.

So let's throw a few things in the old market basket and point the nose of the old boat toward the south. What shall we take? Oh, most anything. You might plan a wenier roast on the beach—quite a way down, you know—away from prying eyes. Or you might have the good things all ready for the table, with the thermos bottles filled with the desired drinkables.

Then down on the sand, where the waves are playing tag with themselves, you can spread out the little canvas and enjoy the "feed" in solid comfort. Sea breezes go good as an accompaniment to a good-sized, well rounded out lunch.

The picnic suggestion for this week is the old standby family picnic grounds—Long Beach. From Glendale go to Los Angeles via Brand boulevard, down Glendale boulevard into Edendale; along Second street and down Figueroa to Vernon, where turn left and proceed to and through Huntington Park.

The road from Huntington Park to Long Beach is for the most part comparatively flat. It is a section which during the past few years has experienced a wonderful growth. Little sections, promoted by real estate firms, have sprung up all along the road, and the prospects are that before many years have passed the country along this boulevard for the entire distance from Huntington Park to the sea will be built up practically solid.

Not so very long ago all of this stretch was taken up by vegetable patches, berry fields and sugar beat plantations. From $100 or so an acre some of this land has advanced to as much as $2000 per lot for residence property and three to four times that amount for business sites.

It is something like 27 miles from Glendale to Long Beach, and every foot of this distance provides some new feature and a point of attraction that will make the trip very much worth while. On down through Willowville you go and into Long Beach via American avenue. Almost before you are aware of it you are looking out over the beautiful expanse of blue. The cooling salt breezes will bring back the old pep and once more you will feel that life is worth living after all.

You can stay at Long Beach as long as you desire, but do not remain there too long for the jaunt of the day is only half over. The aim is to continue along the road that skirts the ocean, down to Alamitos Bay, Naples and Seal Beach. After taking in the sights at Seal Beach, take the road leading away from the ocean, up to Los Alamitos, and on to Artisia. Short stops in each of the towns visited may be enjoyed, this adding somewhat to the pleasure of the trip.

Continue up to Norwalk and on to Santa Fe Springs, from which place take Telegraph road past Rivera and back into Los Angeles, from which place wander homeward by desired route.

A Pair of Pals that are Permanent Fixtures in Glendale

When Thos. E. Ricketts left New York City in his Oakland coupe he little knew that Glendale was on the map. The trip across sold him on the Oakland and Glendale sold herself to him. Now he is here as the dealer for the Oakland Six—a tried and true booster for his new "home town."

U. S. CARS CAN RUN ONE MONTH IN CANADA

For a period of one month after a motorist who is a resident of the United States may take his car into Canada for touring purposes only and return to the United States either by port of entry or by any other other port without having to file a bond with the Canadian customs officials. All that is required is that he fill out at the customs office at the border on entering a form in which particulars are given respecting his car.

WORTH REMEMBERING

Equally as dangerous as following close behind a street car is the habit of following another car through some situation you are not entirely sure about. Many drivers assume that if the other fellow does a certain thing it is for some good reason, and that there is no harm in following. Many a driver has tried this follow-the-leader plan only to find himself caught in a trap with some other vehicle approaching head-on. In such cases the man ahead who has taken a chance on getting by goes unharmed, while the innocent follower, being unprepared for the danger, pays the price.

WATCH CROSSINGS—ESCAPE DEATH

If every driver will exercise particular caution in crossing railroad tracks the prediction of the Interstate Commerce Commission's bureau of safety that 700 autoists will meet death at crossing within the next three months will not come true. Considering the enormous increase in cars some progress in safety is evident when it is seen that 1,083 persons were killed at grade crossings in 1917 as against 1,259 in 1921. There is a possibility that when the 1922 figures are completed the figure will be only slightly higher in spite of the great increase in motor travel.

The number of grade crossing accidents, however, is increasing all out of proportion to conditions, which plainly enough indicates the importance of utmost precaution on the part of drivers. An "accident" at a grade crossing is the last word in luck, for to escape death in an encounter with a moving train is indeed a miracle. Apparently the bureau of safety appreciates the fact that luck will change and that the large number of accidents will suddenly slip over into the fatality class.

How can any motorist know the facts and yet fail to take the simple precaution of being careful to see whether a train is coming?

SO. CALIF. ROUTE TO SIERRAS IS FEASIBLE

E. E. East Reports on Practical Road From Southwest

E. E. East of this city, consulting engineer of the Automobile Club of Southern California, who has recently returned from the inspection of a proposed new road over the Sierras through Sequoia National park for the benefit of Southern California, brings the good news that it is entirely practicable so far as the route is concerned. It is to run from Lone Pine to Porterville or Camp Nelson, a distance of 72 miles, and the prospects for financing it he considers flattering, because of the many interests which would benefit by it first the federal government which would secure an outlet for its timber, next the counties of Inyo and Tulare, Los Angeles, which has a reservoir site to be improved on Cottonwood Creek, and the Edison company, which is planning a power plant on the upper Kern river. The entire state would benefit by the opening of this beautiful country for recreation purposes, and the road would be a tremendous advantage in the control of forest fires.

WHAT'S IN A COLOR?

"Let your car interpret your personality," reads the motor car advertisement. "Give it color, distinction, class!" "Select your favorite from our sextet of stunning colors." "Make your car look like what it is."

So! The secret is out. These snappy colors on our 1923 cars are for a purpose. They are interpreting characteristics, trends, individuality. It evidently applies thus:

If the car distinguishes itself through a delightful habit of getting stranded, stipulate maroon for a color. Blue is just the thing for the man who is carrying his car on time, for every month he can look at his depleted bank balance and feel that the car is out of harmony with the color of everything in general. Green is coming into great vogue, particularly with newcomers in the motoring ranks, which is appropriate enough.

GAIN IN LOUISIANA

Louisiana made the greatest percentage gain in motor vehicles in 1922, registering 31.3 per cent increase.

IDEAL HIGHWAY SOON TO OPEN

J. Newton Gunn, president of the Lincoln Highway Association, has called a meeting in New York of the board of directors to consider plans for the formal opening and dedication of the ideal section on the Lincoln Highway, upon which the finishing touches are now being placed.

The ideal section, in Lake County, Ind., near Chicago, is the finest piece of road on the American continent, and is a development due to President Gunn's interest in this important phase of highway educational work. Through his efforts the United States Rubber company contributed the funds to make it possible.

This section is an effort to crystalize the best expert opinion in America as to what represented the "ideal" in the general design and method of construction of modern through highways. The work now rapidly nearing completion in Lake County represents what Mr. Gunn and the technical committee appointed under his direction foresee as some day extending from New York to Chicago and on westward as the traffic demand necessitates. The design for this magnificent section of highway was determined upon by a board of sixteen of the foremost highway engineers and other authorities in the union. It is expected to stand for generations as a model for the development of all great interstate arteries of traffic.

The ideal section paving cost $65,000 a mile, a sum very small when it is considered that the paving is forty feet wide and ten inches thick, heavily reinforced with steel. Much larger sums have been expended on many sections of the Lincoln Highway for construction of less adequate width.

MOSQUITO TIME IS NEARLY OVER

Those of the rod and reel and the packsack who contemplate a trip into the north woods of Wisconsin and Michigan and Minnesota can be pretty well assured that the winged pests of the woods will not bother them a great deal. In the vicinity of the large lakes of Superior, Huron and Michigan there will be little or no trouble from mosquitos or flies. Inland they are not worth speaking of except along heavy brook covers. I have found it best to wear a net or to use plenty of good fly oil in such places the first of July. On the lakes they will scarcely be noticed. In Canada the fy season is worst from the first weeks of May until the first of July. Few mosquitos are found in the vicinity of the lakes after the first of July. On the trails, inland, there will be some little trouble, especially toward evening. The camper need not worry about these insects from now on.—Sportsman's Digest.

SHIFTING TO "SECOND"

Drivers who have trouble shifting into "second" on hills would soon get the knack of the thing by learning how to shift into "second" when running along the level, after having run along in "high." It is more difficult to shift from "high" to "second" when on the level at from 15 to 20 miles an hour than when going uphill, but with no danger if the driver fails. Having learned how to shift on level ground he will find it comparatively easy to shift when going uphill.

GIGANTIC TOURIST HORDE IS BOUND FOR CALIFORNIA, CLAIM

Auto Club of Southern California Warns Folks of This Section to Prepare to Care for a Record-breaking Influx

More auto tourists are coming to California this summer than ever before, and more particularly, they are coming to the southern part of California.

According to a map just completed by the Auto Club of Southern California, the distribution of auto tourists is pretty well equalized throughout America. It is said by Auto club officials that these tourists are not coming to any particular point in the southern part of the state, but will be distributed generally throughout the counties.

According to letters of inquiry received, upon which these figures are based, the questions show that the visiting motorists are, for the most part, future residents of the various counties and intend to take up land and settle down out here.

Just look at the map if you care to see where your friends are mostly coming from.

Figures on the map are compiled from the letters of inquiry received showing the number of automobiles coming, each carrying approximately four passengers.

FIRST AUTO IS YARDSTICK

Your first car is the yardstick by which the faults or the virtues of succeeding cars are judged. Whether you realize it or not you are always unconsciously saying, "How much smoother this engine runs," or "The old car never did that." It is a very good way to appreciate the important strides that have been made in automobile design, as well as the mistakes you make in choosing subsequent cars.

But a warning is apropos. Your first car is likely to be misrepresented through sentiment. When you took the wheel it was the best car in America, and you were envious of nothing else on rubber. Thus when you come to measure the qualities of the new car, or the car you are considering buying, the first car is likely to be remembered as very much more remarkable than it ever boasted of being.

The first car will ever be a motorist's standard of comparison, but it's well to recall some of the annoying things it did and the many advantages it lacked.

(Copyright, 1923, by The Ullman Feature Service)

KEEP THIS IN MIND

It is occasionally necessary to stop the car in a place where conventional parking is not allowed, or desired, as for instance when inquiring about rates at a hotel, stopping to make necessary purchase of medicine at a drug store, stopping to purchase theatre tickets or procuring a time table at a railroad station. At such times it is advisable to ask the person who rides with you to occupy the driver's seat, thus forestalling criticism on the part of police, doormen or others who might mistake the unoccupied driver's seat as evidence of genuine parking.

ONE MILLION CARS TO BE LICENSED IN THE STATE

Will Require Four Hundred Pounds of Steel for Them

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 10.—Four hundred tons of steel — 800,000 pounds—will be required to manufacture the 1,000,000 1924 motor vehicle license plates just contracted for by State Purchasing Agent W. G. McMillen, for the motor vehicle department.

The contract for making the plates was awarded to the Kittle Manufacturing company, of Los Angeles, which has made the plates for several years. The bids of the company were the lowest and were as follows:

Auto plates, 14½ cents per pair; trailer plates 9 cents a pair, and motorcycle plates 6½ cents a pair. These prices, McMillen said, are a trifle higher than last year due to the increase in the cost of steel.

THINK IT OVER

Just because Americans are buying more cars than ever before is no evidence of prosperity. The man who is always getting a new job has nothing on the man who can land one and keep it.

*Paige weight figured without Spare Tires, Bumpers, and other equipment, for accurate comparison.

Of forty manufacturers of quality cars the two cars leading in sales are priced at $2885 and $2685; the Paige at $2450. What difference is there to justify the extra price? Check Paige points against these competitors—and you will realize that never before has $2450 bought such a car.

131-Inch Wheelbase 5-Foot Springs

Paige has a wheelbase of 131 inches—providing roomy comfort and roadability. Riding ease rarely equaled is assured by rear springs more than 5 feet long. Check against costlier cars! Paige leads in comfort.

More Power for Weight

Mark Paige piston displacement—compare it with others. Here is reserve power for all needs. Paige weight is 3850 pounds, yet the ratio to piston displacement is only 11.4 pounds per cubic inch. This low ratio is why Paige out-performs its competitors—climbs hills easier and at lower speed—gets away faster. Compare it in the chart—nearly two pounds less per cubic inch—15% more ability!

Easy Handling

With a driving range of 2 to 70 miles an hour in high there is small need of gear shifting, though it's done without clash or missing. Steering is easy for the frailest hand.

You wouldn't compare a car with three wheels to a car with four wheels, in relation to their prices. So Paige must be compared as to equipment with what its competitors would cost you if similarly equipped.

What Is Equipment?

Note the twelve items of equipment in the chart above—all things which you would eventually buy for any car. Paige has them all! One competitor has only three of them—and the other five—least costly items. Calculate the cost of this equipment, and see how much more you get in the Paige.

Why Paige Can Be Sold at $2450

Tremendous volume on our smaller car—the Paige-built Jewett—reduces overhead on Paige cars to a negligible amount. This saving makes the Paige price possible. With the Jewett—Paige builds twice as many cars as either competitor shown on the chart. Under any other conditions Paige with its present high standards could not be sold for less than $3000.

To fully appreciate Paige—see the car—drive it. Call or telephone for a demonstration at your convenience. If desired—payment terms may be arranged.

PRETTY CALIFORNIA MAID EXHIBITING NEW GOLDEN STATE LICENSE PLATE

MOTORS SHOW BIG GAIN DURING YEAR

Motor cars and trucks registered in the United States on July 1 totaled 13,048,128. This was a gain of 2,440,000 over July 1, 1922, an increase of about 23 per cent. Every state had more vehicles registered than on July 1 a year ago, while 37 states had already eclipsed the final 1922 total. There is now one motor vehicle for every 8.5 persons in the United States.

Legal Title to Car Is Needed in Penn.

All owners of motor vehicles, whether passenger automobiles or commercial cars, motorcycles or motor bicycles, in the state of Pennsylvania, must possess formal proof of legal title for real estate before November 25. The law will prevent the sale of stolen motor vehicles in the state.

CHEVROLET AGENT SIGNS 1924 CONTRACT

C. L. Smith has just received his 1924 contract. Mr. Smith states that the much talked-of copper-cooled or air-cooled Chevrolet will not be built. The factory will devote its entire time to the Superior models. The Baby Grand model is no more. The line for 1924 consists of Touring, Roadster, Coupe, Sedan Coach, Light Delivery, Chassis and Utility one-ton truck.

IT WOULD BE HANDY

To solve the problem of starting off uphill, when two feet have to work clutch, brake and accelerator, it has been suggested that the emergency brake be combined with the gearshift lever so that by gripping the handle the car could be held in check until the clutch is engaged.

STAR ON LICENSE PLATE IS FOR MILLION

It Is Being Used to Eliminate Excessive Numerals

What is the meaning of that "star" on the new California auto license plates?

Offices of the Auto Club of Southern California have been overwhelmed with inquiries as to the significance of the lone star on the license plates with a numeral following it.

Some interesting investigators have ventured the opinion that this star means anything from the fact that the motoris t has been "pinched" and is now under a penalty marked by a star, to the fact that it is an auto owned by some famous movie star!

It simply means, point out the Auto club officials, that California state licenses have passed the million mark and instead of using numerals to indicate the million, the state authorities have substituted a star.

Therefore, when you see a license plate with a star and a numeral "30" after it, or "13," then you know that the real license number is 1,000,030 and so on.

Be Tolerant With "The Other Fellow"

The "other fellow" make some rather bad blunders now and again, but be tolerant toward him.

Many of his mistakes are exactly the sort of thing you would do in his place. Doubtless you recall the time they bawled you out when, if you could have explained, it wasn't your fault.

The other day a driver who was unfamiliar with a certain road inadvertently drove another machine off the road. It was dark at the time, and doubtful therefore whether he will ever know why he blundered. One thing is certain, however: he will never make the mistake again, for it is doubtful whether he will ever be caught in this particular sort of predicament.

But he was cursed profusely by the driver who had to give way, and unfairly, too. The man who took the ditch would have made the same blunder himself had he not known the conditions. It seems that the stranger had been driving close behind a street car which ran along the right side of the highway. At a certain point the car line switches to the center of the road, and here the driver should have kept to the right of the street car. The change in position of the car line, however, is very gradual. It was dark. The driver thought he was coming to a slight curve. He followed the street car, keeping to its left. And, of course, he interfered with oncoming traffic, being then on the wrong side of the road.

Don't blame the other fellow for what you would do yourself. Save your temper for those deliberate violators who put the "n. g." in motoring.

WHERE DO CALIF. LAWS GET OFF?

An engineer of an insurance underwriters association has made a startling survey of the licensing of cars, and their regulation. The high points of his investigation are: that 43 states make no attempt to exercise supervision over motor traffic; that 41 make no attempt to determine the fitness of the users of their highways; that only three states—Massachusetts, Maryland and Connecticut—have good auto laws; and that is the 2 per cent reduction in auto fatalities effected in these states since 1919 had been general throughout the country, 4300 fewer people would have met death by motor cars in 1922.

These facts are especially significant in view of the fact that experts in motor car regulation are by no means satisfied that the work of the three "ideal automobile states" is satisfactory.

THE REASON FOR EXCESSIVE POWER

The why of a 70 horsepower motor in an automobile normally requiring 25 and 30 horsepower for its work is what I have often been asked to answer.

The enormous reserve of power, it seems, in a 70 horsepower motor would require unusual strength in the chassis. It does, and various different ways are used by manufacturers of high-powered engines, similar to the Paige and Jewett to overcome this strain.

Weight may be added, extra bracings may be run through the frame in the form of cable supports, different types of frame construction are sometimes employed, all with the idea of overcoming the strain of tremendous power driving the automobile forward in reserve.

Yet, consider how seldom is all of this power employed. When you learn that only 30 horsepower is ordinarily used to drive in the city or through the country under normal conditions, your first thought is: "What a waste of power."

But consider this from the angle, the reserve of power. When you have reserve power similar to that in the motor of an automobile it means that you have longer life in the engine. Due to the necessary building up of the various parts of the chassis to withstand employment of this power you will find that you get longer life there also.

It can be seen that an automobile built to withstand the strain of 65 and 70 miles per hour will last for many years under the present day speed restrictions—35 miles per hour in the country and 15 to 20 in the cities.

To get the speeds exceeding a mile-a-minute and the unusual qualities of easy riding found in the automobile of today it is essential that high powered motors be used.

CHEVROLET OPENS SNOW-BOUND ROAD

"And—after all the others had tried and failed there came men and a Superior Chevrolet. They acted not too wisely, but the Chevrolet too well."

Such might be the summary of the story of how Massey McCullough and Perry Hewitt of the McCullough Motor company, in a new stock Chevrolet, opened up the snow-blocked road between Missoula and Bonner, Montana. The distance was seven miles, and the road so bad that the county commissioners had despaired of opening it.

On December 8, after one of the heaviest blizzards of the past few years had left the whole northwest paralyzed under tons of snow, McCullough and Hewitt started east to get some photographs of the new Chevrolet in action.

The papers had been carrying stories of the snow-bound residents of Bonner and their efforts to cut through the big drifts. The prospect for some snow pictures seemed good. Innocently enough Hewitt and McCullough, with a photographer, a driver and an extra man, started for the frozen trail.

About three miles out the party stopped for the first picture. The passengers crawled out on the sidelines in the below-zero weather and pushed the snow away from the front of the radiator. The picture was snapped.

During the short stop, winter wind blowing from Hell Gate canyon had drifted sugar snow across the battered gap the Chevrolet left behind.

Two faint grooves were the only marks showing where, in summer, lay a road. To steer that trail in reverse was not to be considered. To go ahead seemed beyond hope. To stay meant frozen feet and hands. They went ahead, plunging and charging through banks of snow and ice-encrusted drifts.

Once, in a narrow gap, the Chevrolet paused and spun the wheels. The engine worked wide open but the scenery failed to change. A shovel, two shovels, and some hard work freed the differential. Once more the wheels took hold and Bonner was seen across the river.

STICKING CONE CLUTCH

The sticking of a cone clutch may be due to a tendency of the clutch member to fit too snugly in the cone part of the flywheel. This is usually the result of worn facing of the clutch member, caused in turn, by burning the facing through a habit of slipping the clutch. A new leather facing should remedy the trouble; and a handy temporary solution is to wedge broken pieces of a hack saw blade between the facing and the clutch member at several points on its circumference. This will often smooth out a rough and sticking cone clutch.

MAY BE COSTLY

There's no reason why following a car with ineffective brakes is a safe plan. You unconsciously judge road conditions by the speed of the car ahead, and there's bound to be trouble if the driver of the other car is trying to stop and you do not know it.

KISSEL AUTO FAN MAKES GOOD RECORD

Having driven a total of 32,390 miles, according to the speedometer of his Kissel tourster, George B. Diemer of 335 South Hill street, Los Angeles, qualifies as a motor fan from every angle of experience behind the wheel.

Recently Mr. Diemer concluded a cross-country trip to Maine and back in this car, the ninth Kissel he has owned. In less than two months' time he drove 12,390 miles, according to his report to Nelson & Burr, 108 East Colorado, local Kissel distributors. And in all that distance Mr. Diemer declares that not a drop of oil was put in the car except once every 2500 miles when the oil was changed completely.

On the last lap of the homeward journey from Hartford, Wisconsin, to Los Angeles, some 4,100 miles, Mr. Diemer says the oil was not even changed and was still in good condition upon his arrival here.

The car's economy was also demonstrated in its sparing use of fuel, only 862 gallons of gasoline being consumed, according to Mr. Diemer, in the whole 12,390 miles over some of the worst road conditions he says he has ever encountered.

DID YOU KNOW—

That failure to remove the accumulation of dirt under a fender may result in "rusting through?" If a fender is not very strong, and if chipped off bits of enamel on the outside are not promptly touched up with black enamel the fender will shortly resemble a Swiss cheese.

That a damp rag is handy for use in removing light mud spots? This is preferable to removing the marks with polish, as the latter would mean rubbing in the dirt and possibly scratching the body. But after cleaning with the damp rag always follow with a polish.

Passengers Ready for First Air Trip on London-Berlin Line

The official opening of the first regular air line between London and Berlin took place recently. The Aero-Lloyd, as the service is called, starts its flights to and from the capitals on scheduled time. The photo shows the luxurious cabin of the new Berlin-London plane.

TEN SHORT CUTS TO GOOD HEALTH

1. Always remember you are an engineer, fully responsible.
2. Always test your brakes when starting, and have them inspected frequently.
3. Never pass a street car when it is stopping; or, if the law permits, proceed very slowly past it at the legal distance.
4. Exercise special care in crossing in front of a street car or in passing it, as you cannot tell what may be coming on the other side.
5. Always signal with hand when slowing down, turning or stopping, even though you have an automatic or mechanical warning device.
6. Look before you back and sound the horn three times.
7. Try to drive with using the horn as little as possible. A sudden noise may stop pedestrians in their tracks rather than warn them.
8. Don't count too much on the common sense of the other fellow. No one is 100 per cent alert all the time.
9. Drive slowly in streets where children are playing. Remember your own childhood.
10. Cross crossings cautiously. Warning bells may be out of order, watchmen or gate operators may be off duty. Trains cannot stop as quickly as you can. Shift into second to avoid stalling on tracks.

OLDS BROUGHAM IS BEING WELL RECEIVED

"The way sales of cars run is very peculiar," remarked C. H. Hunter, Glendale distributor for the Oldsmobile, this morning. "Most factories have been building about 25 per cent closed cars which seems to be ample. When the Oldsmobile company designed its brougham, it placed the requirements at about 40 per cent. Almost instantly this car took hold and won the favor of the people and 40 per cent does not meet the demand.

"In fact," Mr. Hunter says, "I have sold in Glendale about 65 per cent closed cars in the past four months. Of course, there is a reason.

"The production being heavy on the brougham naturally brings the price down, so that the price on the Olds brougham is very little more than most open cars."

LESSONS IN DRIVING

In the past few years automobile salesmen have been relieved of an irksome duty; it has not been necessary to teach so many customers how to drive. Time was when the prospects demanded a few lessons in driving before actually paying, and it resulted in many a hair raising adventure for the salesman. But recently matters have changed so that the chap who shops for a car without any knowledge of driving is a rarity.

The salesman figured he was in for a period of more profits and less worry, but motordom is threatening to go back to first principles. There has been so much criticism about careless driving that dealers' association are considering the advisability of taking matters into their own hands by giving every customer a few lessons in better driving. It's tough on the salesmen but it's perhaps the best idea motordom has advanced in the past five years. It will make some motorists stop and think even to be suspected of not knowing all there is to know about driving.

REO ANNOUNCES 1924 PROGRAM OF CAR

An announcement of more than ordinary importance emanated this week from the offices of the Reo Motor Car company of California regarding details of the big Lansing factory's manufacturing policies for the year beginning August 1, the various improvements and refinements incorporated in the cars now coming out from the factory and a reduction in price of $100 from factory list prices on the famous Reo six sport phaeton.

In giving out this announcement, Byron C. Foy, president and general manager of the company, said: "The Reo sport phaeton is the most popular model Reo ever turned out and it has been in the limelight a great deal during the last few months owing to the new road records set up by Charles H. Bigelow with one of these cars.

"This and other Reo passenger car models are now coming out from our factory at Lansing with many new and important improvements and refinements and while it has been the custom of Reo to avoid somewhat misleading 'year models' the present product may be said to be the 'perfected Reo six of 1924,' as the changes are extremely important to the motorist and make a good car better.

"No change has been made in the body lines of the phaeton and such changes as have been made in other models are very slight and hardly noticeable. However, changes in mechanical construction are most important. The new Reo brakes have drums 14 inches in diameter and bands 2½ inches wide, providing a total braking surface of 429 inches, greater by a wide margin than that of a majority of passenger cars regardless of weight or cost. In addition to a larger braking surface, the cross rods are also considerably larger and heavier to care for the added strain of the big brakes.

"Other than a highly developed and improved model Rayfield carburetor there is no change in the famous Reo six motor and its accessories, which have been thoroughly tested and proven under all conditions. The rear axle and rear axle housing have both been made heavier and stronger to sustain the maximum of road shocks.

"An electrically operated and self-winding clock is a feature of the sport phaeton equipment which is meeting with unusual interest on the part of motorists, while other additions and improvements include: Approved transmission lock that is positive in action and practically theft proof; two-inch grip on gear shift lever that makes shifting easier and with greater certainty; rubber foot-form brakes and clutch pedals; also the Reo double-frame construction, which has been coming through for some time and which prevents weaving and lengthens the life of the car, together with a number of other important details that will appeal to the experienced motorist."

The fourth car ever made by a manufacturer who is now somewhere around fifth or sixth place in the race for quantity production honors recently changed hands for a consideration of $200.00. It had covered 126,000 miles and was still going good. The agency which handled the transaction is thinking of cashing in on the record by giving prospective customers a ride in it as evidence of its great stamina. The best thing the agency could do would be to hire the owner to impart the secret of his success in keeping the car in service. There is no self-sufficient car at any price.

About 600 member and friends of Burbank Grove No. 241, Order of Druids, will hold their first annual picnic next Sunday in Happiland park, formerly the Glendale-Verdugo park, on Verdugo road. Elaborate preparations are being made by the officials of this lodge for this affair, and it is expected that this will be one of the biggest events of the summer. In the afternoon there will be a program of sports. The picnic is being promoted by Petro Romeo, organizer of the Burbank grove.

OLD MECHANIC SPEAKS AGAIN

"Many of the repair jobs I tackle are food for thought. Boiled down to hard facts I find that they are too often the result of over-confidence in the indicators and gauges on the car, or rather the habit of readin' the indicators at the wrong time.

"Take the oil indicator on the engine, for instance. One chap had to be towed in here with a fine set of burned bearings simply because he always inspected the oil indicator when the car was standin' with the right front wheel higher than the rest. Naturally about two quarts of oil would register like a full amount. The indicator failed him because he didn't give it a chance to register properly.

"I just installed a new battery for another chap who didn't give his ammeter a chance to tell the truth. He noticed that his lights were getting a little dim, and instead of suspectin' that he might need water in the battery decided to advance the chargin' rate of the generator by changin' the position of the third brush. The trouble was he read the ammeter while the headlights were lit, and of course the chargin' rate appeared very slight at normal speed and an actual discharge at a higher speed.

"The next day when he took his long trip of course the battery was overcharged. He relied on the reading of the ammeter the night before, and never thought to consider it in the day time, otherwise he would have observed the need of puttin' the third brush back to its original position.

"The point is, that if you're going to read the indicators on the car you've got to give them half a chance. It costs you money every time you spoil their chances of indicatin' the truth."

Curing your Golf Troubles

By Jim Barnes

Dear Sir: I have a great fault of starting my hitting too soon on full strokes as well as on three-quarter ones, and I don't seem able to get away from the habit, especially when I am playing a rather tight match. Do you think it would help me to get away from this if I lengthened my backswing? It occurs to me that from an extreme long backswing I would possibly have to start the downswing more slowly.

C. L. M.

Answer: I don't believe it would pay you to try out such an experiment as you suggest. Of course, if you carried the club back to extreme length, you would not be in a position to start it down as swiftly as you would from a medium swing, but the chances are you would develop other faults equally as bad by doing so, such, for instance, as throwing yourself off balance and losing control of the swing. There is the big trouble about an extra long swing and the difficulty in controlling it.

My recommendation to you is to watch you backswing. If you are starting to deliver the punch in your stroke too soon, it is quite likely that you are also hurrying the backswing.

Try practicing a slow, deliberate backswing, making, if necessary, a very slight pause at the top of the stroke. You want to make the pause a mental one. In other words, try to make a practice of being conscious of the fact that the club is at the top just as it gets there.

You will then find it easier to start it down smoothly and evenly. I think this will come nearer helping you without introducing any other trouble than any attempt to arbitrarily lengthen the backswing.

RUSTY RIMS CAUSE OF LEAKY TUBES

Never permit the rim to rust. Particles of the rust will work inside the casing and out the tube. Though these holes are too small to be seen by the naked eye, they leak enough air to reduce pressure ten to fifteen pounds in a week.

The more noise a theory makes when it is exploded the less dangerous it is.

PHILCO 'BATS' ARE NOT SOLD TO MAKERS

"One of the chief reasons why the Philadelphia Storage Battery company has been able to reduce the price of the Philco battery to a new low level for a standard full-powered battery, maintaining the high quality for which Philco batteries have long been famed, is that the factory policy is never to sell their product to car manufacturers. Time after time, manufacturers of well known cars have come to them for storage battery equipment, and each time the Philadelphia Storage Battery company officials have turned them down with the answer, 'We don't want new car equipment,'" said Mr. Psenner of Psenner Bros., 601 South Brand, Philco dealers.

"The question naturally arises, why doesn't the Philadelphia Storage Battery company supply new car equipments? The answer is because it means the dealer organization has to service thousands of batteries without possible hope of renunciation, and this is a tremendous expense. By catering to the replacement business only, the Philco service stations do not have to give the greater part of their attention to the servicing of new factory equipment from which they will receive no benefit, and so can give closer attention and better battery service to their legitimate customers—motorists who have older cars and who are soon to be prospects for new batteries.

"Philco stations are always glad to give battery service to all makes of batteries. The next time your battery needs attention, try a Philco battery station—you'll notice that an unusually careful test is given your battery and that the man in charge will not try to 'shoot you through,' as is often the case."

THIS AND THAT

Ford has another new idea. He plans to make each lump of coal from his newly acquired coal fields do double duty. It only remains for Durant to think of a way to use each gallon of gas twice. Double duty for dollars might help some, too.

Bootleg fuel made of pears, buttons or olive pits will hardly become popular under the existing order of things. When gas reaches $1 a gallon there'll be nothing in particular to worry about. Just be a stockholder in a good oil company.

As the dealer might say in contemplating his enormous stock of useless used cars, "some people achieve automobiles; others have cars thrust upon them."

The baby coach manufacturers are said to be tasting their first real competition from automobiles. You can have a car now for fifty down and the rest as heaven wills. Why push the baby when you can jump in too?

In a few years it is predicted that there will be a car for every man, woman and child in the United States, but a lot of folks will still be hungering for a ride on Sunday afternoon.

SIMPLIFIES TRAVELING

One of the steamship companies is starting a new fad which should interest motor tourists. It urges motorists to check their cars "just like a trunk" and save the fatigue of driving to the touring center. The chief objection to coast and inland steamship travel, and railroad travel, is that the tourist has no private means of transportation at his disposal when reaching his destination, while on the other hand many automobile trips are given up because the journey to the particular touring section is a bit too strenuous for the average person. The steamship plan, therefore, enables the autoist to tour minus both objections. There are certain sections of the country where it is particularly trying to motor, and also many places where it is unfortunate not to have a car. The new plan, if the rates are not prohibitive, should meet a long felt want, and doubtless become a fortunate fad in touring.

Judge Knox, Who Ruled, There Is No Limit on Liquor Prescriptions

Judge John C. Knox, citting in the United States district court in New York City, decided that the section of the Volstead law limiting physicians to prescriptions of not more than one pint of whisky every ten days to any one patient is void. He declared physicians should be allowed to prescribe as much whisky as in their judgment a patient needs. This sweeping decision affects every physician in the country. The federal government will appeal the case to the United States Supreme court.

DO IT THIS WAY

Obviating the danger of accidentally bumping the left front fender of the car directly behind your parking space when entering it is to make up your mind always to park the car properly by driving up along side of the car ahead and then backing. No matter how sharply you cut the wheels under this arrangement, if the rear right wheel is slightly behind the left rear of the car ahead, no damage can be done except by the front fenders which, however, are easy to keep track of.

JEWETT SPECIALS ARE SELLING WELL

Jewett Specials were added in a generous number to the July production schedule of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car company, according to word received from the factory by Ralph E. Bliss, 106 East Colorado, Glendale agent.

This was necessitated by the unusual demand for the fully equipped motor car throughout the United States, says Mr. Bliss, whose firm finds itself in some cases several weeks behind in delivery of Specials.

"Our allotment ran out in July and we are forced to supply a portion of that month's sales with part of our August allotment," he said. "The factory tells us in reply to our request for an increased Jewett Special allotment that the same condition exists throughout the country.

"We can easily understand the unusual demand, however. Every prospect we have for a Jewett, almost instantly appreciates the saving in bumpers, stoplight, automatic windshield wiper, extra tire and other equipment details that he makes by buying them with the car. If the prospect hadn't already experienced the troubles of buying the proper equipment as extras, he has heard his friends speak of them.

"Today the Jewett Special in all open and enclosed models carries a complete extra cord tire and cover mounted on the left side trunk, trunk rack and body rails; double bar spring bumpers; combination stop light and rear light; drum sidelight on cowl; motometer, locked on; automobile windshield wiper; rear view mirror and sun visor; and floor heater in enclosed models. The car is also trimmed in nickel."

STONE TOOLS IN GRAVE

A stone pestle and other stone tools were found with part of the skull, part of the right paw, and several other bones of the skeleton of an Indian, were found in the earth of a gravel pit seven miles from Pullman on the Moscow-Pullman road when workmen were excavating for a rock crusher recently. A movement is afoot to add the relics to the Indian life exhibits of the State College of Washington museum.

STURDY STAR HAS MANY SALES HOMES

The number of concerns that have taken agencies for the Star car in Southern California have become so numerous that the motorist finds the Star emblem of service displayed in almost every town and city in this territory.

Regardless of how well built a piece of machinery may be, it periodically requires attention and the proximity of the car to a qualified service station is often a vital point to be considered. With the continual expansion of the Star dealer and service organization, Star car buyers are assured of always being able to get the right kind of attention at all times.

The announcement last week that the Star interests as far as the factory is concerned had been taken over by Norman DeVaux from R. C. Durant, whose other duties demanded more of his attention, will in no way affect the Star situation in the state of California. All the plans and policies so carefully thought out by Durant and his associates will be carried on and the plans to devote all of the present Durant plant in Oakland to the production of Star cars will become a reality just as soon as the enlarged new Durant plant is completed. Also the announcement of the abandonment of the Eagle car is evidence of the stress that the officials are making over the Star.

The Star is handled in Glendale by Dilley & Armstrong, 115 West Harvard street.

BRITISH EMPIRE A BABEL

[By Associated Press]

LONDON, Aug. 11.—There are spoken in the British empire today more tongues than prevailed at the time of the destruction of the Tower of Babel, according to Professor Daniel Jones, an authority on languages.

In the entire empire, he says, there are from 800 to 1,000 distinct languages. India alone has 500.

BATHING CAPES

Striped linen, the kind used for slip covers, now fashions stunning bathing capes.

When a mother tells the truth about her children she whispers it to herself.

SPEAKING TO DAD

There are more than pecuniary reasons why you should show respect for your car by taking the best of care of it. Not the least of these is the example you should set before the younger generation whose attitude toward property and the care of it is very largely influenced by that displayed by parents.

Imagine what splendid citizens the Nation's children would grow up to be if every housewife decided never to dust a piece of furniture nor call up the plumber the moment something went wrong with the drainage. Picture the younger generation growing up in an atmosphere where broken window panes in the home would remain unattended to, where chandeliers showed half the bulbs burned out, or where no one ever took the trouble to sweep up the cellar.

Sounds fanciful. Even in the most modest homes much effort is daily expended in keeping things presentable and usable. This process would continue if only for the good influence a well-cared-for home exerts upon those who are brought up in it. But, from appearances, the automobile is not in the same class with the home.

It is well to remember that to many young people the automobile stands out conspicuously, which means that it is capable of a great influence on their lives. They "live" in the family car a large portion of the time, and they are keen to observe that father shows no evidence of valuing it. Therefore, why should they? For is he not Dad, the famous party "who knows"?

Some people never succeed in finding out which side of their bread is buttered until they fet it fall.

Old Mechanic Says—

"That mysterious knock you hear may be due to uneven compression in the engine. The way to find out is to take the hand crank and slowly turn over the engine with the ignition off. Open all the petcocks 'cept the one for the cylinder you are testin' and find out whether there is any variation in the 'feel' of each cylinder.

"If there are no petcocks on the car unscrew the spark plugs. They'll probably need cleanin' anyway. And if the engine is several years old, and hasn't been overhauled, it may be better to crank fast. An old engine will leak compression too fast if you crank slowly. This will only make it more difficult to make the test, whereas if you crank faster with the old engine you get better results.

"Try to make the test accurate. Crank a new motor slowly so as to be sure to note the difference in compression, if any. Crank the old motor with a snap. And, in either case, be sure that the petcock and the spark plug of the cylinder being tested does not leak. Do the job after the car has been standin' overnight so that the oil around the piston rings will not have to be considered."

PATHETIC PICTURES

Women who aren't good looking enough to attract Sir Raleighs to change tires for them.

A driver whose rear-view mirror reveals the motor cycle officer on the trail.

PARKING POINTER

One very common difficulty in pulling out of a tight parking space is to find that, in backing up, the car gets wedged between the curb and the rear of the car ahead. This is invariably caused by trying to steer out of the space at the first attempt. The driver cuts his front wheels so far that the right rear wheel is in line to back into the curb at a 45 degree angle. Since the front of the car will not clear the back of the car ahead the driver is virtually locked in. This trouble can be overcome by steering only slightly away from the curb when driving up to the back of the car ahead, and by then cutting the front wheels into the curb when backing. This places the rear right wheel about two feet can proceed to steer out of the space in the regular way without from the curb.

OIL LEAKAGE

It is important to prevent the escape of lubricant from the differential housing, because it will accumulate on the brakes and reduce their efficiency. While it is difficult to overcome leakage due to excessive supply, if reasonable precaution is taken in reassembling the axle the housing may be made leakproof. Leaking is usually caused by worn felt washers in the stuffing box which is intended to form the lubricant seal. It is advisable, therefore, to replace the felt washers and other worn parts of the lubricant seal when differential repairs are being made. Owing to the importance of this feature, the slightest amount of wear evident will justify replacement of the parts. The shaft on which the parts bear should be smooth so that it will not wear the seal away and cause the leak to appear again.

HYGIENE IN BRIEF

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1923, by The Associated Newspapers)

As an aid to ready comprehension of fundamental requirements in personal hygiene I offer the following summary:

Good nutrition depends not alone on the amount of food eaten but on the kinds of food eaten. Keep the diet varied, and in especial avoid any excess of sweets, meats, bread, potatoes and other starchy foods.

On the other hand, because of the vitamines they contain and for their favorable action on the eliminative organs, be sure to include in the diet fresh fruits and vegetables, particularly such leafy vegetables as lettuce, spinach and beet tops. Increase the consumption of fruits and vegetables and decrease the consumption of meats as age advances.

In general, decrease the food consumption during warm weather. At all times drink plenty of water, not less than eight glasses a day. Also make abundant use of water for cleansing purposes.

And don't forget to clean the teeth by brushing them at least twice daily, using a powder or paste recommended by your dentist. Visit the dentist every three or four months in order still further to protect yourself against tooth decay.

To impress upon you the importance of this protective measure I would recall that dental disease directly and indirectly lowers the vitality, and often paves the way for the development of serious maladies, such as chronic rheumatism, heart and kidney trouble, disease of the stomach and gall-bladder.

Exercise regularly, but not over-strenuously, in the open air. Especially after the age of 40 is the warning against over-strenuousness of exercise to be heeded. In choosing forms of exercise give preference to those which are personally most pleasurable, always avoiding though, any tendency to overdo.

Remember, moreover, that if regularity of exercise is essential to health, so is regularity of rest. Relax for a few minutes at frequent intervals during the day, and give yourself an ample sleeping allowance. The sleep-need differs with individuals, but most people require not less than eight hours' sleep in every twenty-four. Children should have an even longer period of sleep.

When going to bed, see to it that the bedroom is well ventilated. To sleep with windows open is to make sleep more than doubly conducive to health. Well ventilated rooms should in fact be the rule, by day as well as by night.

In the matter of clothing, the hygienic requirement is for dress suitable to the season, but never unduly tight or unduly heavy. Tight and heavy clothing, besides directly affecting the health unfavorably, affects it indirectly through unfavorably influencing the posture.

A posture that is stooping or slouching is distinctly unhygienic. Stand and sit straight, the head well up, chest out, abdomen in, shoulders back. Walk largely on the balls of the feet, with the feet straight and turned out.

When tired, keep out of crowds so far as it is possible to do so. At all times give a wide berth to persons with the bad habit of coughing and spitting carelessly, and as a safeguard for other people avoid such a habit in yourself.

Cultivate emotional control at all times, but most of all when disease of any sort is epidemic. Refuse to yield to fear and worry, those prime psychic enemies of the human race. Be optimistic, remembering that cheerfulness promotes the functioning of the vital organs, while gloominess deranges their workings.

Be friendly, be honest and sincere, be enthusiastic. The gaining of such qualities reinforces the good effects of faithful observance of the laws of bodily hygiene, while failure to gain them may undo all the good to be obtained through such observance.
